

Seek Boarding Homes for Aid Society Girls

The Illinois Children's Home and Aid society has developed as a part of its service a large number of boarding homes for children who are in need of temporary care. The children in these boarding homes are treated as members of the family, and, if old enough, assist in the household duties, even though the society pays a small sum for their board and provides clothing.

Because of the unusual demands for the care and protection of needy children which the society is seeking to meet at this time, it must secure some additional Protestant families who are in a position to provide temporary care for girls from 12 to 16 years of age, and for whose care there will be some reimbursement.

Any family who can help is invited to communicate with the society at once by letter. Time will be saved, it is explained, if the communication will describe the home and provide facts concerning the members of the family. Before the placement of any girl a representative of the society will call personally upon the family.

Applicants are asked to write to the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, 203 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.
