

"ALICE" DRAMA HERE SATURDAY

New Trier Dramatic Club Presents Freshman-Sophomore Play in Auditorium

(Contributed)

This Saturday the New Trier Dramatic club, which is known throughout the north shore for the excellence of its productions, will present as its freshman-sophomore play, "Alice in Wonderland." There will be two performances of this classic at the New Trier auditorium. There is to be a matinee at 2:30 and an evening performance at 8 o'clock. Since there are no reserved seats, the early birds will have their choice of places. The admissions are on a par with local movie prices.

In spite of the extremely low prices, no skimping has been done in either costumes or scenery. The stage crew has been hard at work producing the intricate and artistic settings for this novel drama. The costumes were made under the direction of Gertrude Van Trewen, a former New Trier student. The music department has also been working diligently on this play, for much of its charm depends on the musical accompaniment.

New York Success

The New York production of "Alice in Wonderland" at the Civic Repertory theater is still going strong. All the play-going public of Manhattan is eager to see this drama, which was so widely hailed by the critics. If you want some first-hand information on the New York production, refer to the current of Theater Arts Monthly. There you will find a long article about the merits of this classic.

As is the policy of the Dramatic club, when "Alice in Wonderland," was cast an effort was made to give as many different students parts as was possible. Therefore, many of the more important parts are played by a different student at each performance. Here is a list of the cast:
