

Art League Will Make Tour of New Deering Library

On Friday evening, February 10, the members of the North Shore Art league and their friends will visit the new Charles Deering library at Northwestern university as guests of Theodore Wesley Koch, librarian of the university, and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper S. King of Winnetka.

Mr. Koch will show the group the library, and will emphasize the interesting architectural features of this most recent addition to the modern gothic buildings of the north shore; the interesting windows containing medallions depicting the story of books and learning planned by Mr. Koch; and the beautiful carving in wood and stone which have been done for the interior.

After touring the library the group will go to the treasure room and there will see an exhibition of illuminated manuscripts from the collection of C. L. Ricketts of Wilmette, father of Mrs. A. T. Goodman and of Mrs. Jasper King. This collection, after those of J. Pierpont Morgan in New York and that in the Huntington library at Pasadena, Calif., is the most expensive of Latin illuminated manuscripts in the United States.

Mr. Ricketts has purchased the manuscripts together after a period of forty years and they form a unique group in that they have been brought together on the basis of their artistic interest and merit, rather than from the historical, antiquarian, or collector's point of view.
