Entertainment Is Club Mart Feature

To Offer Style Shows, Movies, Dining, Dancing, Exhibits, New Attractions

By L. H. S.

Plans for the eagerly awaited and much heralded mart at the Wilmette Woman's club on March 15, 16, and 17, are reaching completion, and the numerous committees feel that they are offering a very fine exhibition. There will be no beam from a heavenly planet to start our exposition, but it will open under the beaming smiles and glowing welcome to all comers from officers of the club forming the reception committee. A full afternoon's or evening's entertainment will be found in the great variety of things to do and things to see on the three gala days of the mart.

This is not to be an old-fashioned bazaar where charity was solicited with no promise of giving much for your money. In tune with the times, every attempt is being made to give the best values possible and no overcharge has been allowed to slip past the vigilance of chairmen. This is a buying opportunity, and if the club profits, as indeed it should and must, the money goes to the upkeep of the building and the preservation of the club's fine financial standing.

The lucky owner of that rare possession, a cash dollar, will enjoy spending it so advantageously. Booths will overflow with well made articles that are practical, necessary, in fact: aprons, children's dresses and suits, household needs, ties, gifts, china and glassware, books and flowers, candy, prepared foods, the list is long. For lighter moments are the grab-bag and the white elephant. Children will be carefully looked after at the movies especially selected for them. Relaxation for their elders is to be found at sociable card tables, at dancing, or lacking time for those, in cozy chats over the teacups. Those desiring to anticipate the future may have fortunes told by palm or tea leaf. And the lovely meals that will be served! A turkey dinner is promised for Thursday night. All dinners will be served at a price reduced from last year.

Several entirely new features have been worked out. Instead of silhouettes and sketches post card size tints may be had. They are most lasting portraits, non-fadeable, turned out by a novelty photographer for a small fee. Also, a young artist will color for you at reduced rate any photographs you wish to bring to her.

Friday night has been set aside as young people's night, since it was felt that there was much at the mart to entertain our high school children. A gay time is offered them, what with dancing to a fine orchestra and with the assistance of popular young hostesses. Miss Bess McIlraith is official hostess for Friday evening. She is to be assisted by Jean Fisher, Jane Sundlof, Jean Cutler, Nancy Durgin, and other charming young ladies from the several high school years. They are to model the gowns and wearing apparel at the style shows, also, and the music for that event and for the dancing will be furnished by Eugene Berg and his orchestra.

Especially attention is called to the style shows which will be held each evening at 8. On Wednesday festive and everyday garb for small folk will be displayed and modeled by them. Mothers of the very young will be pleasantly surprised at the possibilities planned for reduced budgets.
