

Kenilworth Youth Writes of Shaking at Hermosa Beach

George Jones, 318 Oxford road, Kenilworth, former New Trier freshman who is spending the winter at Hermosa Beach, Calif., recently sent his friend, Richard Holmes, 307 Woodstock avenue, Kenilworth, a vivid account of the earthquake. Excerpts from the letter, dated March 10, follows:

Dear Rich:

How are you and your family? We just had one of the biggest shocks in our lives. I suppose you have heard about the earthquake we just had yesterday and are still having. (As I write this letter the earth is rocking under me and I feel in a very embarrassing position).

I was sick in bed at the time it started and was listening to "Chandu the Magician" when all of a sudden the house began jumping up and down and left and right. Things that I thought were unmovable began hopping all around. First, Jean beat it out of the house; then Mom hollering for me to do the same, so I tore out carrying my bathrobe with me and in my bare feet. Everybody was outside no matter how they were dressed, so I joined the congregation.

Aunt Kate came out of her house carrying her parrot on her shoulder. The parrot was squawking like everything; the ground all around was rolling like the ocean.

After that subsided, I tore into the house and half dressed and ran to the garage and amid plaster and dust I got the car out and parked it away from the houses. Then the earth began acting up again, so I sat and listened to peoples' chimneys fall and everything in their houses. It sounded like fifty guys with St. Vitus' dance trying to juggle glasses.

After that we stealthily went back into the house to see what fun the earth had had. Aunt Kate's house was a wreck. Everything was on the floor either cracked or broken; even the walls
