Debate certificates were awarded Gerald Brooks, Mary Pearl William, Marjorie Wood, Frank Randall and Mary Lee Neeves. Those elected to the National Forensic league are Al Brown, Florence Hagenah, Jane Fitzgerald and Ed Rosenheim. The Alexander McLean Memorial trophy for excellence in oratory was presented to Dave Routson, who won the cup by his oration on "Men or Machines," given

Graduation Reveries

*These are the dwellings of our hearts, my friends!
These halls the home of joyful play and toil.
These are the kindly, helpful friends.
On leaving them forever
what are our thoughts?*

*Sadly we pass these doors forever
in mind recalling hours of work and play;
the learning we've gained here.
Good Friends we leave behind,
who've helped us on our way
with parting handshake.*

*Only our memories will remain
And days which once seemed long and hard in Future's eyes e'er will again appear shrouded with fantasies of happy hours.
And so we leave—
a song upon our lips
and courage coursing through our hearts,
to greet with smiling eyes
our Destiny.*

*Farewell, dear friends!
Farewell, beloved walls;
eternal dwellings of the memory.
Again, farewell!*

*The halls are empty now.
No sounds of joy now greet the smiling sky;
Only the echoes of the voice remain.*

before members of the senior class, in a recent contest in which all Public Speaking students took part.

John Lauretson who has been manager of the stage crew for three years was given recognition.

Mrs. Roland Whitman, representing the Winnetka Music club, gave three awards to music students for dependability, loyalty and devotion. These awards went to Ameri Edinger, Arthur Katzel and Norman Modine. The Tencher award for effort went to Mary Pictor, first, and Spiro Mann, second.

Barnett Civic Awards

The Barnett civic awards for essays were presented to Jean Stout, first, Bill Klein, second, and Mary Nash, honorable mention. The Barnett bird prizes went to Bob Davis, first, Bob Cutler, second, and Vivian Grigsby, honorable mention.

The League of Nations Contest prizes went to Nancy Rutledge, first, and Eugene Harper, second.

G. A. A. awards for high-point girls went to Jane Waidner, first, with 860 points, and Jean McConnell, second, with 840 points.

As Locke Rogers and Dick Hall had the same scholastic average, they were given the Harvard book prize for excellence in scholarship jointly, with promise of another book to come.

The Yale award for service to New Trier went to Cy McKinnon.

Schuman Gets Tri-Ship Cup

The last, regarded as the best and highest award—the Tri-Ship cup, awarded annually to the boy best fulfilling the three ideals of the club: fellowship, sportsmanship and citizenship—was presented to Stanton Schuman. At this time, Mr. Gaffney turned the assembly over to Schuman. In a brief and effective talk, Schuman presented New Trier's testimonial to Edward J. Phelps who retired from the school board in May after fifteen years of service. Mr. Phelps responded with a few words which ended in a rising vote of thanks on the part of faculty and student body and in a rousing turn of cheers and applause.

The assembly closed with the singing of the "Loyalty Song."

Romance has again invaded the ranks of the girls' gym department—this time choosing Miss Annamay Smith who comes from Middletown

Approve Budget Plan for Ticket Sales at School

The Student Activities plan or Budget plan recently proposed by the Tri-Ship club has been approved and praised by many teachers and prominent students since the plan was revealed. The idea was lauded by Matthew P. Gaffney, New Trier principal, who said he was enthusiastic about the possibilities of the plan because he was once principal of a school in which a plan similar to the proposed one was tried and worked very successfully.

The Budget plan, used in many universities and high schools, is briefly this: Every student who pays a sum of approximately five dollars will receive an Activities ticket which will be a card with a number of squares marked on it, each square representing a different activity. Besides admitting the owner to all football, basketball and baseball games, as well as the Suburban League track meet the ticket will also admit the bearer to all plays and other performances held at New Trier, give him a year's subscription to the New Trier News, and a copy of the Echoes. Prices of all these things, when bought separately, would cost the student approximately ten dollars.

A ticket will be issued each semester by the adviser-room treasurer, who will collect one quarter a week from each student until the two tickets have been paid for. The treasurer will also keep these tickets in the adviser room and give them out the day preceding the coming activity so that the tickets will not be lost and to remind the student about the event to which he may get admission with the ticket.

The small cost of the ticket, it is explained, would only be made possible by a sale of at least 1,500 tickets.

The tickets, it is predicted, will also bring about a much better student support of athletics and school plays and will produce a greater interest in all school events.

Coach Announces Girls' Golf Teams

The golf teams have been announced by the coach, Miss Iris Boulton, and head of golf, Lois Tucker. Each team is made up of a representative from each class. The first team is composed of Lois Tucker, Joan Sutter, Bertha Bergh and Sonia Nash. On the second team are June Kehl, Esther Hearne, Betty Barr and Ellen Munster.

The gold tournament last Saturday was played off in excellent weather, probably the best that the girls had encountered this year. In the handicap tournament, Betty Barr was first, Esther Hearne and Bertha Bergh tied for second, and Ruth Hipp was fourth. In the gross tournament, Lois Tucker was first with the score of 49 for nine holes, Esther Hearne and Bertha Bergh were again tied for second with the scores of 55.

Conn. She will be married this summer to Joseph W. Walsh of Portland, Conn., a school teacher and basketball coach. They will spend their honeymoon in Maine.
