

Shawnee Presents Case in Wilmette Water Works Suit

only would not be a utility, but if drinking facilities were provided in connection it would be a utility. And much more of that, to what purpose only further revelations can decide.

Attempts by attorneys for the Village to draw from Lee Nelson, auditor of Shawnee club, information as to the number of members in good financial standing met with strenuous objections by opposing counsel which were sustained by the master. Mr. Nelson was asked where most of the members lived, and stated that of 808 members, 304 lived in Wilmette.

Consult Photographs

The concluding witness of Tuesday's session was Fred C. Winzenburg, 829 Linden avenue, another photographer, who testified that he had taken several photographs which complainant had introduced into evidence. The object of most of these photographs was to show the residential character of the neighborhood in which the Shawnee club is located, and the unsightliness of the locality due to construction operations.

The hearings are being attended by Village officials and citizens interested in the outcome of the case.

Albert N. Page, 901 Ashland avenue, was the first witness at the Wednesday session, the purpose of his testimony being to show the character of the locality adjacent to the Shawnee club. It was established that he had been president of the club during the major part of the construction of its present building. Questions touching upon his activities during and following the referendum campaign on the waterworks brought a sharp clash between opposing counsel and a discourse by the master on what was permissible evidence. Piece by piece the properties of the neighborhood were described in response to questions. Mr. Page testified that the improvements had advanced in value for the past several years, and the exclusiveness of the district had become established. Attorneys for the village proceeded to show that Mr. Page had an interest in preventing construction of the waterworks, an interest which the witness did not seek to hide. In response to questions he stated that he believed the project inimical to the best interests of the taxpayers and that he was also motivated by a desire to prevent a disfigurement of the beach.

Frank J. Scheidenhelm, 804 Forest avenue was the next witness, the opening questions tending to qualify him as a judge of real estate values. He also testified that the trend in improvements for the past ten or more years was upward. His connection with the Park board as its treasurer was established, after which he was asked this question by counsel for the club: "By whom have the two lots on which the waterworks are now being constructed been maintained for the past ten or fifteen years?" That started the fireworks, and immediate and vociferous objections by counsel for the Village initiated an extended discussion among attorneys and the master. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Nance for the Village contended that the question indicated that complainant had the purpose of attacking the Village's full rights in the property, the validity of the zoning and an attempt to prove that the waterworks would be a public nuisance, asserting further that any interest of the Park board in the property would have to be shown by records of the Village board's official acts in relation

Health Center News

The next Chest clinic will be held on June 19 from 1 o'clock to 3. Dr. Julius Novak, medical director of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute, is in charge of the clinic.

The Wilmette Health center dental clinic, which has been conducted during the school year for the benefit of the children of Wilmette and New Trier High school, will close for the summer on June 20. Besides this dental clinic the Howard and High Crest schools have conducted similar clinics during the school year. In all, over 300 children have been cared for at these clinics. All the other clinics that are conducted by the Wilmette Health center will remain open during the summer months, as the Health center is carried on twelve months of the year.

The next Infant Welfare clinic will be held on June 28.

thereto. The master finally ruled the question out, and at this point the hearing adjourned until Thursday morning. Complainant's case, expected to be completed Wednesday, thus goes into another day at least. When the Village will begin its side has not been determined, but it is definitely asserted that it will not immediately follow completion of the complainant's case.

Injuries in Auto Crash Cost Life of John Carpenter

Funeral services were held for John C. Carpenter on Monday afternoon at his late residence, 239 Essex road, Kenilworth. Mr. Carpenter, one of the most widely known patent attorneys in the country, died last Friday at a hospital in Marion, Ohio, where he was taken when his car overturned in a ditch near Delaware, Ohio, on Sunday, June 4. He was en-route to his country home in the Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia when he met with the accident. It was thought at first that his injuries were not serious, but later a heart injury was discovered and this resulted in his death.

Mr. Carpenter, son of Frank G. Carpenter, author and world traveler, was born at Washington, D. C., on December 7, 1884. He was educated at Cornell university, where he was prominent in athletics. After his graduation from Cornell he was sent to London as a member of the United States Olympic team in 1908.

Prominent Attorney

Later Mr. Carpenter studied law at the University of Chicago and at George Washington university. He began his practice of law in Chicago in 1911, when he was associated with the firm of Linthicum, Belt and Fuller, patent attorneys. He later was a member of the firm of Munday, Clarke and Carpenter, but for the past ten years had practiced independently. Among his clients were such large corporations as the American Can company, the Felt and Tarrant Manufacturing company and the Staley Corn Products company.

Kenilworth Civic Leader

In Kenilworth Mr. Carpenter was active in community affairs. His club affiliations included memberships in the University club of Chicago, the Skokie Country club, the Cosmos club of Washington, D. C., and the University club of New York.

Mr. Carpenter is survived by his widow, Mrs. Laura Elliott Carpenter, four children, Sue, Frank, William and Robert, and a sister, Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington of Washington, D. C.
