

North Shore Has Prominent Part in Norway Fete

For one evening the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel took on the aspects of the hall of Valhalla as several hundred Norwegians gathered at a dinner last Tuesday evening to pay tribute to the sail-ship, Sorlandet, which will be Norway's exhibit at A Century of Progress.

John W. Sinding of Kenilworth, who is chairman of the Norwegian American Committee for A Century of Progress, was the toastmaster. Through the efforts of Mr. Sinding and his associates the affair was a success throughout.

The square-rigger, Sorlandet, made the trip from Norway with a crew of ninety cadets ranging from 15 to 19 years of age; the entire voyage across the ocean being made under the power of sails.

North Shore Represented

Many Norwegians from the north shore communities made up the official welcoming party and the day's activity wound up with the banquet in the evening.

On the program were many prominent speakers including Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair; Harry S. New, former postmaster general; Minister H. H. Bachke; Consul General Morgenstierne; Consul O. Bernts; Judge of Municipal Court John J. Sonstebj; Capt. Magnus Andersen, who piloted an open Viking ship to the Fair of 1893; Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius; Maj. Gen. Frank Parker of the United States Army; Col. T. A. Siqueland; Capt. H. Brunsvik, commander of the Sorlandet; the Hon. Ira Nelson Morris, president of the Chicago chapter of American Scandinavian Foundation, and the Hon. N. Traedal, Royal Norwegian commissioner to A Century of Progress.

Hear Consul General

Consul General Morgenstierne pointed out the fact that the American who stood deepest in the hearts of the Norwegians was the man who came out of the state of Illinois, Abraham Lincoln.

Captain Andersen, 75-year-old pilot of the Viking ship to the Fair of '93, proved to be a very humorous and entertaining speaker. Captain Andersen was of the belief that the former fair had it all over the present one in the way of external appearance. "But I am told," he said, "that the inside of the present fair is better, and after all, it's what is on the inside that counts." President Dawes received a hearty laugh from this statement.

As a conclusion to the festivities the national anthems of the United States and Norway were sung by the assemblage.

GUESTS HERE

Miss Beth Chase and Carl Chase, the son and daughter of President Harry W. Chase of the University of Illinois, were the house-guests of the Joseph A. V. Turcks for several days last week. Joseph Turck, Jr., was at home from the university at the same time. He graduated there this month with a Bachelor of Science degree in chemistry, and Monday returned to Champaign to take up graduate work at the summer session. He has been awarded a fellowship at Iowa State university, and will continue his graduate work there in the fall.

ATTEND ANNIVERSARY

Douglas Crooks of Kenilworth and Percy W. Armstrong of Glencoe who are alumni of Morgan Park Military Academy, attended the special 60th anniversary exercises of the school last Saturday. Graduation exercises were held Sunday. Mr. Crooks is postmaster at Kenilworth, while Mr. Armstrong is postmaster at Glencoe.

June and Fern Ahlstrand, 2109 Kenilworth avenue, are leaving next Monday for Camp Conference Point at Lake Geneva. While they are away their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel E. Ahlstrand, are going on a short bass fishing trip at Lake Geneva.

DADDIES and MOTHERS

AGREE there is no finer way to instill in their growing daughters the love and full appreciation of life's cardinal virtues than by the training and natural character building qualities gained in a camp of high standards.

BUT ARE WE BEING FAIR TO OUR DAUGHTERS?

Are we letting the strain and stress of our present economic situation cause an atmosphere of uncertainty to enter even our homes? We shrink from final decisions. We, the older generation, seem to be at the cross-roads. We hesitate, then let chance rule instead of intelligence. And our children may pay the price of our indecision by unconsciously forming habits of instability—drifting—of lacking a goal or ideals.

IN FUTURE YEARS WE'LL CENSURE THEM FOR IT AND FORGET OUR PRESENT RESPONSIBILITY!

WHY NOT DECIDE NOW to give your daughter a month or the summer in an atmosphere free from adult worries where she can learn to KNOW HERSELF and BE HERSELF—a happy, joyful girl with other girls, learning to plan for tomorrow by adapting herself TODAY to a new life, new associations, new environment.
