Mrs. R. E. Fitzgerald, 640 Abbotsford road, Kenilworth, has sold her home and has been visiting her former home in Parsons, Kas., before going on an extended visit with her sister, Miss Leila Welsh, in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Parsons, 310 Cumnor road, Kenilworth, left on Wednesday of last week by motor for Florida to spend the month of February. They took their sons with them.

Miss Ruth Johnston, 321 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth, returned Wednesday of last week after completing her senior year at the University of Illinois.

Dance in Club Gaieties

Helene Heman, to be seen in the Woman's Club Gaieties, February 15, 16 and 17, with her associates, Joan York and Dorothy Wilkins of Lake Forest, appeared in and about Chicago last spring and summer. She gave a series of performances in modern dancing both to music and poetry, at the Illinois Host House at A Century of Progress for three weeks.

Miss Heman and her associates present a new form in dancing, using the rhythm of poetry audibly presented as music, rather than the instruments themselves. This gives both a lyrical and illustrative quality to her dancing that is at once unique and modern. Where these dancers do use music, however, they employ it as a background for interpretative expression. Included in the numbers Miss Heman will present in the Woman's Club Gaieties, are two moods from "Renaissance," by Edna St. Vincent Millay, "Dance Macabre," to the music of Saint Saens' "The Water Pitcher," a translation from the Chinese, and A. A. Milne's "The King's Breakfast."

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Stone, 1234 Ashland avenue, returned Friday from a two weeks' visit in Bellaire, Fla. They went down with Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Drake, who are staying another week.

Mrs. R. A. Bullinger, 707 Park drive, Kenilworth, and Mrs. A. Stuart of Evanston entertained jointly at a bridge luncheon for sixteen on Tuesday, February 6, at Mrs. Bullinger's home.

Miss Marjorie Evans, 535 Essex road, Kenilworth, entertained some of her college friends from the University of Illinois at luncheon at her home last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Streed, 639 Cumnor road, Kenilworth, and their three children left last Friday for a visit to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Chamber Music Group Announces Next Concert

On Sunday afternoon, March 11, the North Shore Chamber Music association will sponsor a recital by Jacques Gordon, violinist, and Lee Pattison, pianist, to be held in the Kenilworth club at 4 o'clock. This is to be the second in this season's series of concerts. Mr. Pattison is the director of the American School of Musical Education in Chicago and teaches both in the city and in New York. He has been soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra and has been heard often with Guy Meier in delightful two piano recitals. Mr. Gordon, who is well known to Chicago and north shore music lovers, was formerly concert master of the Chicago symphony.

Whitaker Baer, 2115 Beechwood avenue, returns on Saturday from a six weeks' business trip through the west.

Frank Gerould of Summit, N. J., was in Chicago last week. Mr. Gerould is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor, Jr., of Kenilworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kile of Ivesdale, Ill., were week-end guests of their daughter's family, the Allan Bulleys, 333 Richmond road, Kenilworth.

Mrs. Irving G. Jackson, 188 Fuller lane, Winnetka, left today for Miami, Fla., where she will remain for about two weeks.

Critic Reluctant to Leave Concert by Duo-Pianists

By Joyce Whitman

As delightful a recital as one could wish to hear was presented last Monday night at the New Trier auditorium by Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, duo-piano artists. The concert, the third in the 1933-1934 series of recitals sponsored by The Winnetka Music club, followed the usual standard of excellence. The program was an example of outstanding balance of subject and mood. Each composition appeared and passed inevitably, in its right order, perfectly executed.

The first group consisted of two Choral Preludes, by Bach, and the Sonata in B flat major, by Clementi. If one were familiar with two piano technique perhaps the unity of the two artists would not be so startling. But to me the orchestral effect of the two pianos was breath-taking. The artists played as one. Each showed complete mastery of his instrument; each had astounding technical facility; and each, simultaneously exhibited delicate phrasing and quality of tone. I can never forget the Bach "Jesu, My Heart's Joy", and, as evidence of its popularity with the audience, the artists repeated it as their last encore. The Clementi was charming, with perfect rhythm and sprightly melody.

The second group contained an "Andante and Variations", of Schumann and a fascinating "Rondo", by Chopin. This Rondo was particularly interesting to me as an example of youthful genius. Chopin wrote it at the age of 19, especially for two pianos. As an encore the ever delightful "Arensky Waltz" was received with much applause.

Of the last compositions, Lennox Berkeley's humorous Polka, Debussy's Fetes, arranged by Ravel, and the Rakoczy March were outstanding. After several encores the audience reluctantly left the hall, murmuring quite audibly of their pleasure and satisfaction.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Kuttan, 1201 Chestnut avenue, entertained a dozen guests at a dinner bridge last Saturday at their home.

Carl Buehler, 151 Abingdon avenue, Kenilworth, has been made lieutenant of his company in the lower school at Morgan Park Military academy.

Mrs. I. A. Archambault entertained her luncheon bridge club on Wednesday of last week at her home, 300 Sheridan road, Kenilworth.

Mrs. Albert Fleischmann, 336 Essex road, Kenilworth, will entertain her mother's bridge club at luncheon today.

The Goodwin T. Wilsons, who have resided at 620 Abbotsford road, Kenilworth, have moved to 201 Cumberland road, Kenilworth.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Williams, 211 Essex road, Kenilworth, are sailing on Saturday from New Orleans for a three weeks' trip to Panama.

Mrs. F. B. Lewis, Jr., 610 Washington avenue, was luncheon hostess to her bridge club Friday.

Mrs. Albert Webster will be luncheon hostess to her bridge club today at her home, 1601 Tenth street.

Mrs. Walter F. Shattuck, 755 Greenwood avenue, Glencoe, entertained her afternoon bridge club.
