The bride wore a wedding dress of white mousseline-de-soie over white taffeta. A series of wide ruffles fell from the knees to the floor and formed a circular train in the back. The gown was trimmed with rosepoint lace from the wedding dress of the bride's mother. The long tulle veil was edged with wide panels of rosepoint lace.

Mrs. Edward H. Wachs of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Canada, was the matron of honor; and the bridesmaids were Miss Helen Bennett of Moline, Miss Janet Tippery of Evanston, Mrs. Bruce Lourie of Moline, and Mrs. William F. Soule of Evanston. They all wore pale blue organdy dresses made with capes and flat wide ruffles, and trimmed with blue taffeta sashes which formed trains. They wore large natural colored leghorn hats with golden brown velvet crowns. Their bouquets were garden flowers—chiefly delphinium and daisies.
