BOOKS TO READ ALOUD

The Wilmette Public library believes that reading aloud has never been sufficiently exploited as an indoor sport. It is so obvious that everyone forgets about it. And that is unfortunate for there is nothing that offers the maximum of entertainment with a minimum of effort.

A good reader should be chosen, and after that a good book. The "kick-ending" is an important factor in stories read to an audience of diverse interests. The tempo should be fast, the style simple and compact, and the story contain humor and suspense.

Suggestions for reading aloud:

Balzac—Short Stories.
Cather—Youth and the Bright Medusa.
Chesler—Short Stories.
Chesterton—Wisdom of Father Brown.
Doyle—Sherlock Holmes.
Huxley—Brief Candles.
Maugham—Casuarina Tree.
Merrick—Chair on the Boulevard.
Munro—Complete Saki.
Parker—After Such Pleasures.
Stone—Cold Journey.
Woolcott—While Rome Burns.
Marquis—Archy and Mehitabel.

BUSINESS WORLD AND ITS APPROACH

The library has added new books to its collection on the broader aspects of business relations. The following bibliography suggests different methods of approach:

Bingham—How to Interview.
"The experience of those who work from nine to five daily at the job of securing facts from others—and have thought how this is best accomplished."

Fancher—Getting a Job and Getting Ahead.

"The author has drawn upon his extensive experience as an executive in large organization to present essential factors."

Gowin—Developing Executive Ability.
A wealth of ideas for the young executive.

Pitkins—Art of Rapid Reading.
For the busy adult who wished to increase the amount of his reading.
Stockwell—Introduction to Business Management.

"Helpful suggestions toward training to qualify for new opportunities."
Goode—How to Turn People Into Gold.
Walker—Office and Tomorrow's Business.

Simplifies office procedure and the cutting of overhead costs.
Schell—Technique of Executive Control.

PLAN YULE PARTY

A Christmas party for scoutmasters and their assistants, cubmasters and their assistants, skippers and their mates, and commissioners—and their respective women friends or wives—will be held Saturday night, December 15. The place will be announced through special bulletin to scout leaders.
