Betty Gillies and Dr. Mackenzie Are Married Saturday

A long sleeved, high necked white satin coat covered the white satin wedding gown worn Saturday evening by Miss Betty Gillies of Hubbard Woods at her marriage to Dr. Wallace Dundas Mackenzie of Evanston. White satin also fashioned the braided headband from which fell the bride's tulle veil. Her flowers were calla lilies.

The flower girls, Ruth Gillies and Katrina Wolcott, wore peach crepe frocks with peach poke bonnets, and carried little old-fashioned bouquets. Mrs. Edward M. Harkness, the matron of honor, was also in peach, her gown being fashioned of chiffon, as were those of the bridesmaids, two of whom wore pale green and the other two, turquoise blue. Miss Mira Lee Benoist, Miss Helen Macdonald, Miss Frances Bell, and Miss Patricia Nash were the bridesmaids. The matron of honor and bridesmaids carried large bouquets of spring flowers with ribbons matching their dresses. Mrs. James P. Gillies, mother of the bride, wore powder blue chiffon with three dark orchids.

Dr. Charles Crowe served as best man, and the ushers were James P. Gillies, Jr., Walter Teich, Bruce Deswarte, Dr. Robert Grier, Winthrop M. Robinson, and G. Malcolm McConnell, Jr.

Spring flowers and candles decorated the Winnetka Congregational church, where Dr. Samuel Harkness read the service before a large number of guests. A smaller number attended the reception Mr. and Mrs. Gillies gave afterward at their home, 1148 Oakley avenue.
