Wilmette Library News

Newspapers and Magazines

"Recent Social Trends in the United States" emphasized newspapers as agencies of mass impression. It brought out that large groups are influenced by the same information; that newspapers are consolidating and becoming fewer; that they are becoming independent politically, and as a corollary they are less important as adjuncts of political parties; and finally the necessity of greater circulation for advertising purposes may influence their policies.

The Wilmette Public library cannot afford to subscribe to many papers, but it has aimed to sample newspapers for its readers. We have the Chicago Tribune, we take the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, often named as one of the United States finest newspapers, the New York Times, and, of course, WILMETTE LIFE and WINNETKA TALK.

The outstanding contribution to contemporary thought that the library has is the Manchester Guardian, the great British liberal weekly. Each number covers the world events of the week, and then has an editorial department of Comment and Criticism, foreign correspondents have several pages, and there are signed reviews.

These papers may be read in the library.

The current periodicals are the most up-to-date source of information, events and movements in the world. It is almost impossible for books to keep up with events, and they are often outmoded by the time they come off the press. The library circulates all but the current numbers of the following magazines: Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Congressional Digest. Current History. Foreign Affairs. Forum. Harper's Magazine. New Outlook. North American. Review of Reviews. Scribner's.

Library Notes

"I'm hunting a name for the nicest girl in the world. She is ten days old."

The wide smile betrays the fond father, and the Librarian brings out her book of names. The one the Wilmette library has just received is by Winthrop Ames, a new and up-to-date affair called "What Shall We Name the Baby." It contains old and loved names, old and unusual ones, as well as many new ones. Ask at the desk for it.

Margaret Irwin writes splendid historical novels. Her characters breathe the breath of life, as well as the facts of history. "None so Pretty" told of a simple country girl in Charles II's time's, her dominating mother, the coarse squire and the gallant Restoration lover. "Royal Flush" was even more dramatic in narrating the life of Henrietta, the sister of Charles II, at the court of

NEW TRIER TOWNSHIP SCHOOLS

Wilmette, Ill., April 4, 1935

The following 1932 Tax Anticipation Warrants of the Wilmette Board of Education, School District No. 39, will be paid on presentation at the office of the Township Treasurer, 1200 Central Ave., Wilmette, Ill.

Educational Purposes from E1802 to E1920 and E1922 to E1971.

Interest ceased to accrue April 1, 1935.

F. A. ANDREW,
Township Treasurer.

Louis XIV. Miss Irwin's last book is "The Proud Servant" an account of Montrose, the most romantic character in Scotch history. John Buchan introduced him in "Witchwood," and later wrote his biography. These books all make one wish for more.

When novels cost two dollars and a half each, you may get forty for the price of one at the Wilmette library. It costs six cents to circulate a book.

A lecturer once made the following points: There was a good and a bad way in reading. It was a bad way to regard literature as a soothing sirup or a drug; or to regard it as a beauty parlor for self-glorification; or to read to keep up with the Joneses. It was bad to pretend snobbishly that one enjoyed books that no one else understood. But it was a good way to read with an open and enquiring mind to explore and discover new ideas, new personalities and new places.

A marvelous book for the woman who likes fine needlework and embroidery is Modern Needlecraft, by Minter. It discusses in detail and illustrates the different stitches, plain sewing, knitting, crocheting, mending, slipcovers, draperies, lines, etc.

All the play-reading groups will be interested in the quantities of new plays in the library. A list follows: Anderson—Valley Forge. Behrman—Rain from Heaven. Hellman—Children's Hour. Sherwood—Petrified Forest. Coward—Point Valaine. Kennedy—Escape Me Never. MacIntosh—Richard of Bordeaux. Van Druten—Distaff Side.

Lecture on Timbuktu
at Museum Saturday

Rudyard Boulton, leader of last year's Straus West African expedition of Field Museum of Natural History, most recent large zoological expedition sent out by Field Museum of Natural History, will give a lecture, "Timbuktu and Beyond," at the Museum Saturday afternoon, April 6. The lecture will be illustrated with motion pictures taken by John F. Jennings, of Chicago, official photographer of the party, during operations conducted in Senegal, Nigeria, Angola, and other parts of Africa. Mr. Boulton is assistant curator of birds at the museum. The expedition was accompanied for several months by its sponsor, Mrs. Oscar Straus, of New York. The party covered several thousand miles of deserts, mountains and forests, chiefly by motor truck. Collections of thousands of birds, mammals, fishes, reptiles and insects were obtained for the museum. Admission is free, and the lecture will begin at 3 o'clock in the James Simpson theater of the museum. While a number of seats are reserved for members of the museum, the greater portion will be available to the general public, which is cordially invited to attend. No tickets are required. The lecture is for adults only; for children there is a free moving picture program in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. James Swan and family of Delavan, Wis., were guests last week of Mr. Swan's father, J. D. Swan of 932 Lake avenue.
