Attempts Suicide in Barn; Is Recovering

Early Saturday morning Milan Jost, 31 years old and single, attempted suicide by shooting himself in the forehead with a .22 rifle, in the barn of his employer, William Rengel, 2722 Glenview road. He was removed to the county hospital by Wilmette police, and is reported to be improving, though physicians had been unable to locate the bullet.

Jost had worked at the Rengel place for about two weeks, being sent there by a Chicago employment agency. Saturday morning as Mrs. Rengel was preparing breakfast she heard a gun shot, but thought nothing of it, as the rifle was kept in the barn for the purpose of shooting rats. Leaving the house for a moment, Jost entered during her absence, and upon her return she noticed blood on his head. Mr. Rengel was called and took the injured man to a physician, who in turn notified the police department.

Jost at first said the injury was accidental, but afterward admitted it was attempted suicide. He said he had contemplated the act for the past eight years.
