TEATRO STARS DICK POWELL

Features Popular Singer with Ruby Keeler in "Shipmates Forever," Thrilling Annapolis Story

Tunes with a salt-sea tang plus action in keeping with the crisp tradition of Annapolis makes "Shipmates Forever" exhilarating entertainment at the Teatro del Lago Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler deliver knockout performances in this story of the big time crooner who enters the academy only to please his admiral dad, Lewis Stone. Though Powell's sulking makes him unpopular with his classmates, he finally gets a chance to show what kind of man he is—a scene no one should miss.

"She Couldn't Take It," slamming through with some of the fastest fun ever experienced by screen fans, provides entertainment every second at the Teatro del Lago this Thursday and Friday. George Raft plays a penitentiary graduate who's entrusted with the wealth and welfare of a spoiled family. He and Joan Bennett wage a battle of temperaments until... but the conclusion is too good to give away.

Saturday, January 4, brings just the dish for lovers of mystery films. "Remember Last Night," featuring Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, Robert Young and Sally Eilers, is a witty, swift-moving picture about a hard-drinking set who find it difficult to explain the presence of a corpse on the "morning after."

The persuasive genius of Greta Garbo dominates "Anna Karenina," film version of the Tolstoy classic, showing at the Teatro del Lago Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Garbo, exquisitely photographed, has more fire than in her past several films. Freddie Bartholomew also wins honors in a delightful performance as her son. Fredric March portrays her lover.

MARCH HEADS CAST

Top place on an all-star cast has been given to Fredric March in "Wooden Crosses," based upon a story of Americans in the French army during the World war. The film is soon to be produced by Darryl F. Zanuck.

WHAT! NO MUSTACHE?

John Boles will be seen without his mustache in "A Message to Garcia." Barbara Stanwyck plays opposite Boles in this film which depicts an episode of the Spanish war.

Every patron of the Wilmette theater will want to attend "Here's to Romance" Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The film introduces Nino Martini, recently of opera and radio.

as a major star, yields a first movie glimpse of Madame Schumann-Heink, and presents a golden hour of entertainment. Genevieve Tobin, Reginald Denny and Anita Louise figure prominently in the story, a gay blend of domestic comedy and operatic delight. Martini's voice is glorious.

This Friday and Saturday bring "Grand Exit," an entertaining mystery film portraying the activities of a suspected pyromaniac. Scenes of fire-fighting intensify the interest. Edmund Lowe, a combination of spice, action and smoothness, heads the cast. Ann Sothern and Onslow Stevens also have important roles.

Dumas' swashbuckling classic of romantic intrigue, "The Three Musketeers," lives in a romantic new presentation on the Wilmette screen Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Walter Abel, as that dashing Gascon, D'Artagnan, leads the sword flashing quartet to the rescue of the queen's honor.

TUNESMITHS ASSIGNED

The tunesmiths, Harry Tobias and Jack Stern, have been assigned to do the musical score of B. F. Zeidman Productions' next musical, "Sweetheart of the Navy." Stern did the score of "Folies Bergere" and Tobias composed "Sweet and Lovely."

Valencia Has Queen of All Tap Dancers

Eleanor Powell, finest of girl tap dancers, clever actress and pleasing singer, brilliantly makes the American public realize she is all this in "Broadway Melody of 1936," showing at the Valencia theater Sunday and Monday. Persons who miss seeing Eleanor Powell will be as rhythm-starved as those who have never watched Fred Astaire.

Sharing honors with Miss Powell in "Broadway Melody of 1936" are Jack Benny (of radio fame), Robert Taylor and Una Merkel. In addition to boasting a better plot than most musical productions, this film wins interest with its dance sequences, clever direction, novelty effects and lilting songs.

"Don't miss seeing this film," the critics plead.

This Friday and Saturday, the Valencia presents "The Last Outpost," unforgettable because of elephant stampedes, mountain climbing, swollen rivers and death in the desert. The story is laid in India, with Cary Grant as the officer who unknowingly falls in love with his best friend's wife. The latter parts are played by Claude Rains and Gertrude Michael, respectively.

"Exceptionally fine," comments the Better Films Council of Chicagoland regarding "Here's to Romance," Valencia attraction next Tuesday and Wednesday. The picture, which offers a first movie glimpse of Madame Schumann-Heink, introduces Nino Martini, recently of the opera and radio. His voice is glorious. Others in the cast are Reginald Denny, Genevieve Tobin and Anita Louise.
