Nine Local North Shore Garden Clubs Will Participate in Chicago Flower Show on Pier

Flower Demonstrations Innovation This Year; Show Committee Lists Club Entries

A new feature of the Chicago Flower show on the Navy Pier April 3-11, inclusive, to be inaugurated this year, is the demonstration of flowers appropriate to costumes of various types. With the headquarters of the Garden Club of Illinois, sponsor of the show, buzzing with activity, with committee members from various clubs conferring, planning, collecting, and keeping details of these plans secret, the flower show committee this week gives an official list of these north shore clubs, their presidents, the exhibits they have entered, the chairmen of exhibits.

A group of sub-debutantes, young matrons, and older women will wear flowers Mrs. Bert Schiller McDonald will arrange in suitable bouquets, boutonnieres, and corsages appropriate for street, day-time, evening, and weddings. Mrs. McDonald will encourage the use of unusual blooms in place of those which have been over-used. Her demonstrations will be given at 3:30 in the tearoom on the pier, and on two days, will deal with the decoration of tables for various occasions.

Present at the preview of the Flower show Friday evening, April 2, an invitational affair, will be a group of about thirty members of the National Council of State Garden Clubs, several of whom will serve as judges. They represent all sections of the country.
