DANGER

POPULAR GAL

Marsha Hunt has received three bids to the Dartmouth carnival for next year and they are all from unknown admirers.

FAIRING FORTH WITH THE

Brief Pre-views of

Another Dawn. Warner Bros. picture, directed by William Dieterle, with a supporting cast of Kay Francis, Errol Flynn, Ian Hunter, and Frieda Inescort. A picture with a quadruple, instead Elephant Boy. Alexander-Korda-United Artists. Robert Flaherty, Zoltan Korda, directors. Sabu, Iravatha, Walter Hudd.

This outstanding film emphasizes the charming personality of the small Indian boy who wishes to become a Mahout. His devotion to his elephant leads him to brave the dangers of the jungle to save his friend's life and he discovers a herd of wild elephants for which there had been a large search. It is highly recommended for interest, direction, and photography.

Married Before Breakfast. MGM picture, with Robert Young and Florence Rice.

Robert Young, refreshing and debonnaire as ever, raises this film to the height of entertainment. The good story concerns a crackpot inventor who cashes in on his work, does a lot of reckless spending, and gets involved in a night of adventure when he tries to help a strange girl. Florence Rice is excellent as the heroine.

Mountain Music. A Paramount picture directed by Robert Florey, with an outstanding cast composed of Martha Raye, Bob Burns, and many others.

This movie is of the type that might be classified as absolutely "crazy." Its humor lying in the unusual circumstances which befall Bob Burns, and his "find," Martha Raye, the show has some of the rarest humor imaginable. Bob comes from a family of mountaineers, and at the very outset a wedding brings to a happy conclusion a long feud between two of the neighboring families. Strangely enough every time Bob Burns gets hit on his head he has a complete change of personality, and it is this metamorphosis which makes this show such a musical farce. While traveling in an amnesiac state, Bob meets Martha Raye, a husband-seeking wallflower, and it is then that the riot of fun begins. Those who are willing to revert to a highly imaginative state will undoubtedly enjoy this.

Saratoga. MGM. Jack Conway, director. Jean Harlow, Clark Gable, Lionel Barrymore, Walter Pidgeon, Una Merkle, Frank Morgan.

The story is centered about a racing stable and the efforts of a daughter to

EXPRESSIVE EYES

Ann Sothorn, star of the current picture, "Super-Sleuth," with Jack Oakie, has, as illustrated in the view above, unusually expressive eyes.

PING PONG

Fay Wray, who appears opposite Richard Dix in Columbia's "It Happened in Hollywood," is rated as the champion ping pong player in the film colony.

of a triangle marriage and love sequence, it is recommended by the Better Films Council of Chicago as being, "a highly ethical drama." The desert locale furnishes effective scenery and the acting of the cast is fine.
