and the Chicago Regional Planning association will be utilized in preparing the final reports and charts. Recommendations made by Mr. Frost and his associates will be presented to the association's board of directors, consisting of fifty prominent citizens representing every one of the North Shore towns and cities, for necessary action. Aroused by developments that threaten the residential character of the area, the association is enrolling new members to aid in the fight to protect homes. The organization has the cooperation of a number of North Shore communities as well as a large number of other civic and improvement bodies. The fight to preserve the residential character of the North Shore has been in progress for more than twenty-five years.

Make Street Study

"The present survey will probably show what, if any, new paving or construction is necessary," Mr. Frost said. "Slight modifications in existing streets may be required, but an attempt will be made to determine how to improve the utilization of existing highways and other facilities."

The firm making the present survey already has extensive knowledge of the North Shore's problems. It prepared the official plans for Lake Forest, Highland Park and Winnetka and laid out sections of Chicago. It is responsible for a number of the principal movements in the development of Washington D. C. Besides its many other works in Chicago, it created the beautiful Buckingham Fountain. Edward H. Bennett, head of the firm, was closely associated with the late Daniel H. Burnham, originator of much of Chicago's basic city plan and is carrying forward his general philosophy of preservation rather than destruction of natural beauties and fundamental character in residential and other communities.
