

TRAINS DOWN

When William Gargan signed for his role as Robert Taylor's prize fight opponent in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Crowd Roars," he also signed an agreement that he would "make the weight" in twenty days, and by diet and exercise reduced from 190 pounds to 174 in fourteen days.

"Our Gang" Keeps Spencer Tracy Busy

After his experience at juvenile peace-making, Spencer Tracy has decided wild game hunting would be much less dangerous.

At lunch in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer commissary, Buckwheat and Alfalfa, members of "Our Gang," sat near him, quarreling over who should get the last cookie.

oping to prevent trouble, Tracy ordered a double ice cream cone for each in exchange for the cookie.

An argument then arose as to who should give Tracy the cookie. Buckwheat grabbed it first and as Alfalfa jumped for the cookie, Buckwheat threw it at him, missed, and hit Tracy on the nose.

The boys were apologizing when Mrs. Fern Carter, their teacher, called for her charges.

As they left, Buckwheat stumbled and his cone fell on Tracy's chair just as the star sat down.

Tracy sighed, "Gosh! I'd rather fight Joe Lewis than try to keep those kids contented," as he walked from the commissary.

MOUSTACHES NECESSARY

Extras in gay uniforms for the opera sequence in "The Great Waltz" were lined up, inspected by Captain Richard Von Opel, technical adviser, and hustled to the make-up department. In the year 1850, in the period dealt with in the story of the life of Johann Strauss, every officer and man in the Austrian army was compelled to wear a moustache, the technical expert declared. So hirsute adornments were applied to about 300 extras in conformity with the edict of long ago.

COMIC'S DRESS

Hugh Herbert, comedian in "The Great Waltz," thinks he is his funniest only when dressed in the height of fashion. He believes clothes are one of a comedian's most important aids.

Where to Go

"Hey! Watch What You're Doin'!"

Jeanette MacDonald Has Fans of Royalty

Jeanette MacDonald has three of the most priceless fans in the world, yet they have never asked her for an autograph!

They are empress Eugenia, Empress Josephine and the Czarina of Russia—and all three are in the living room of her new home.

Miss MacDonald, whose hobby is collecting rare fans, was presented with the Czarina of Russia fan by her husband, Gene Raymond, on her birthday.

Due to the fact that this particular fan carries an unusual pattern on both sides, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star has it placed in a double-glass standing frame in order that its entire beauty may be visible.

All three are not only priceless but are authenticated treasures once owned and used by the imperial consorts whose names they bear in the "Sweethearts" star's collection.

CLEM MCCARTHY CAST

The voice of Clem McCarthy, familiar to millions of sports fans over the radio, will be heard in "The Crowd Roars," story of the boxing rackets, starring Robert Taylor. McCarthy, in person, as well as his voice, will lend an added note for reality to boxing sequences of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.
