

Band of four musicians presents Music4You

Three years ago, Greg Altman, often called the John Denver of the North, and Dick Reed performed together in a local benefit concert. Their short collaboration resulted in the performance duo, Music4You, which has visited adult care facilities and specialized in everything from classic country to modern folk rock, including the music of the late John Denver.

With the addition of bass player Diane

Madsen and fiddle player Don Grabiell, the "4" in the name of the group took on a new meaning and enabled them to branch out into other venues and music genres such as bluegrass, jazz and classic rock. The band now prides itself on being one of the most eclectic performance groups in the Alpena area today, providing music for a variety of venues and audiences throughout Northeast Michigan.
