INTRODUCTORY

For the first time in its 28 years of publication all the work on the Alpena City and County Directory was done in Alpena. The information for the 1910 Edition was collected by Alpena men and women and the Directory was linotyped and printed in the office of the Alpena Evening Echo by Alpena printers.

In addition to the information contained in previous editions the 1910 Directory contains the names of all married women in the city, a Street Directory showing who lives in each house on every street in the city, a list of incorporations companies from the records of the County Clerk, a list of notaries public, and much general information not heretofore published.

There are 8,411 names in the alphabetical list of city names in this Directory. 1,914 more than two years ago; the Business Directory contains the names of 667 firms and companies, 17 more than two years ago; while the County Directory contains 2,019 names, about 100 less than two years ago. In previous Directories a great many names of non-resident landowners were published in the County Directory. All non-residents were stricken out this year by the Supervisor in each township, who carefully corrected each list.

The publisher thanks the public for its generous patronage and promises that the next edition of the Alpena City and County Directory will show ever greater improvement than the 1910 Edition.

Copies of this Directory can be purchased in the office of the Alpena Evening Echo.

COUNTY OFFICERS
Probate Judge—Daniel A. Campbell
Treasurer—Mrs.NOTE: The text appears to be a city directory listing various officials and businesses in Alpena City. It includes names, titles, and information about the city's services and businesses. It also mentions various townships and their officers. The directory seems to be part of a larger Alpena City Directory, which likely includes more detailed information about the city's history, geography, and other notable features. The directory is an essential resource for anyone interested in learning more about Alpena City's past and present.
