ALPENA COMMUNITY COLLEGE, ALPENA, MICHIGAN

VOL. 5, NO. 1

A.C.C.'s Accreditation Is Renewed by North Central Association

On July 30, 1973, the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools voted to continue the accreditation of Alpena Community College as an associate degree-granting institution. This recognition by the North Central Association that ACC is accomplishing its stated purposes and goal to serve the higher education needs of the people of northeastern Michigan identifies it as meeting the same accreditation standards as Michigan State University, Central Michigan University, Lake Superior State College, etc.

Alpena Community College began preparing for its recent accreditation review immediately following the last accreditation examination in 1963. However, the writing of the "Institutional Profile" and the preparation of the "Basic Institutional Data Forms" were completed during the 1972-73 academic year under the leadership of Mr. John Heimnick, Dean of the Faculty. Many faculty and staff members assisted in the preparation of the basic institutional data and the writing of the 154-page Institutional Profile.

During the Examining Team's visit on April 2, 3, and 4, they met with students, faculty, administrators, staff members, Board members and local citizens. The interviews provided the examining team with a composite view of the college by which they were able to recommend to the Commission that ACC continued to meet the high standards of the North Central Association's accreditation.

The next accreditation review can be expected about 1978, according to North Central Association current review policy.

Your primary responsibility should be to meet the college's academic expectations and to take advantage of the many opportunities for development provided by the college's program of extra-curricular life. You and your fellow students have much at stake in Alpena Community College and can personally influence its development as well as your own. WORKSHOP TO BE HELD

Classes will be cancelled after 3:00 p.m. Thursday, August 30, to enable the beginning of the first all college in-service training session on the Alpena Community College campus for the year.

The workshop will concern itself with minority education and the Minority Affairs Office in particular, dealing primarily with the Native American Program that is housed on the campus. Resource people from throughout the state, who are in top positions of government and education, and who are themselves Indian, will be leading various general sessions and group discussions.

Although the workshop is mandatory for all administrative, faculty, and staff members, that does not mean that it is just closed to those individuals. It is an open, all college function, and, as such,

all of the promised additions on hand

For those new students unaware of this donation to the library, a new collection of books has been added, which are considered "rare" because of their antiquity. As Mr. Hartwick, Head Librarian, stated, however, "A rare book does not necessarily have to be an old book; a rare book could be published to be a rare book and is called a 'limited edition.' Only a few copies are printed and no more."

The collection of books were donated by Mr. & Mrs. C. A. Gordon of Harrisville for the continuing education of our students.

This collection of books will be on hand for interested students to view, but must not leave the library. Mrs. Grimes, Technical Librarian, revealed recently, "We hope to obtain a display case to show interesting facets of the collection from time to time." Because of the large number of books, this would be necessary for the students and faculty to view the entire collection over a period of time.
