

Coach Schray: "Lots of talent"

Lumberjacks Selected

Try-outs were held last week for the men's basketball team and Coach Schray has made his final selections for this year's squad. "We have lots of talent and with a little coaching, (which Coach Schray is sure to provide), we should do quite well."

The Lumberjacks will have almost an entirely new look with only two players returning from last year's team. They are Rod Everage, and Randy Miller, both 6'4". Everage was one of ACC's leading scorers last year and will be providing much of it again this year. Miller saw only limited action last year and will be looking for this season.

Schray has found that much needed height that has been lacking in most of the past Lumberjack teams. Alex Mosley, at 6'9", is the big man, with Paul Gleason, Wendell Taylor, and Alonzo Weatherly coming in at 6'5". Other members of the team are Johnnie Baccus at 5'6", Earl Buckingham, at 5'10", both great ball handlers, George Coley, Rick McGee, Chris Harris, all at 6'2", Mark MacArthur, the only Alpena native at 6'4", and Scott Dow at 5'10".

Cosch Schray didn't just go out and pick his team from whoever showed up at the basketball court.

Try-outs were held a couple of days previous to Schray's selection of the team. They were composed of a series of rigorous running drills, one-on-one competition, and basic conditioning exercises like jumping rope, climbing stairs, as well as scrimmaging.

This gave Coach Schray an idea of each players coordination, stamina, and general playing ability.
