

Perplexing Professor Puzzle

by Malcolm Hohmann

All you need do is supply the instructor's name (usually last name only) that phonetically resembles or matches the word or words that pertain to the clue. For example, for Mr. Wright over in Forestry, I might have said something about him building an airplane and never being wrong. I sincerely wish you success and join in your wishes that our editor never asks me to do this again.

1. You, I or anyone else can be thrown in the slammer for disobeying this lanky instructor.
2. The practical unit of inductance equal to the self-inductance of a circuit or the mutual inductance of two circuits in which the variation of one ampere/second results in an induced electromotive force of one volt.
3. A movie with Jane Fonda.
4. The other day I visited a Bavarian tanner at his place of business and inadvertently stood on a sample of his handiwork. He glared at me and snarled: "-----, dummkopf!"
5. Be looking for this fellow in the hearth next season.
6. Disease afflicting you when your sonyat is inflamed.
7. The fibrous cord inside my kerosene lantern finds this instructor particularly mundane.
8. These two professors get together from time to time and make popcorn. Pass the salt!
9. A grammatically incorrect statement concerning possession of a racing car.
10. Although devoutly religious, this mild-mannered sage appears a bit sheepish at times.

Social Security trust funds from the unified Federal budget so that Social Security reserves cannot be used to offset increased spending in other areas of the Federal deficit. Secondly, it would permit the Old Age and Survivors' Insurance Trust Fund to borrow from the more adequately funded Disability Insurance and Health Insurance Trust Funds (interfund borrowing). These funds would have to be repaid with interest. Third, it would enlarge the Social Security Board of Trustees, and insure that its membership more adequately represents the interests of employers, employees and beneficiaries.

The Michigan Senator said: "The changes I am proposing in this legislation will stabilize the financing of the Social Security trust funds for the immediate future and will protect the system from becoming a pawn in the budget process of this and future administrations. These steps are urgently needed to restore the confidence of the American people in this vital program—a confidence that has been shaken by recent efforts to make unprecedented and uncalled cuts in Social Security."

Riegle, who on three different occasions offered amendments to restore the minimum Social Security benefit, said public outrage against that particular cut finally forced its restoration. "The minimum benefit cut and these other attacks", he said: "have needlessly frightened many of our older citizens, shaking their confidence that Social Security will be there when they need it. The attacks have had the same effect on those now paying into the program. I have and will continue to use every resource available to me to stop these attacks and keep the system safe in the future. The 1.4 million Michigan residents receiving Social Security in one form or another consider it a contract with their government—it has to be kept."

NEW APPLE COMPUTER

BY GEORGIA WHEELER

A new Apple computer was recently purchased for ACC's Forestry, Concrete and Electronics department. Dave Dierking, Director for the Forestry dept., said that the 51-10 computer that was being used, was in too high of demand, so it was time to get another computer.

The new computer is small and will be mobile enough to be used between at least the three departments. Dierking also said that the computer is part of the students training, in knowing how to work with it.

Money used to purchase the new unit came out of the three departments budgets and cost approximately $2500.00.

OLD MAN WINTER

BY ELAINE WILS

As we sit watching the autumn leaves drifting by the window. It sends a shiver down the spine just thinking of the word "drift".

The drifts will soon be coming, formed from those innocent fragile looking white flakes that pile up so quickly into snowbanks.

This year, beware, you had better get out your heaviest outerwear, the size 13 socks Grandma knit, snowboots, and babushkas. You may even have to consider snowshoes or a team of huskies leading a dog sled.

We all know good ole ACC stays open, unless it is a snow blizzard not even fit for Eskimos.

According to Engineer Manager Ken Apsey of the Alpena County Road Commission, the financial situation is so critical that there will be no overtime for road commission employees to plow, except in response to severe life threatening emergencies and no weekend plowing. So with fingers crossed there may be a "few" extra snow days this coming winter. Shhhh--don't tell anyone but, we heard in about mid-January even some of the faculty, secretly wish for an occasional snow day.

Campus Update will, in future issues attempt to give you helpful tips, just in case you're caught in a winter emergency situation, listing both what should and should not be done for your safety until help arrives.

In the meantime, let's all sit back and hope we have a beautiful Indian summer, before the inevitable prevails upon us.

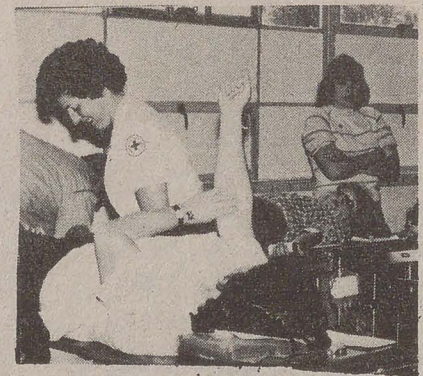

NEWS FROM ARMED FORCES MAIL CALL

Brighten A Soldier's Holiday

At many posts and bases across the U. S. and around the world, Christmas will see many of our military personnel on duty, in defense of the U. S. and the Free World. For many of these young people, it will be their first Christmas away from home. Many of these young men and women will receive little or no mail; for others, just being away from home will be an extremely depressing experience.

This is where ARMED FORCES MAIL CALL comes in. MAIL CALL receives Christmas cards filled with newsy and friendly notes and letters, from individuals and groups all over the country. These Christmas greetings are in turn sent out to various facilities of the Department of Defense as well as independent agencies (USO's, Armed Services Y's, military hospitals,

BLOOD DRIVE

According to community services, the first of a four part blood drive, September 30, was a success. The count on the pints of blood received was 42.

Although not every one was accepted as a donor, the walk-ins made up for the people rejected. The entire college community were side by side in the drive, Faculty as well as students.

Chuck Weisen, Director for community services, says that he was very pleased with the turn out and added "We hope to do at least as well in the future."

The next blood drive is scheduled December 4, followed by one March 11, and June 24. Weisen says if anyone has any questions they would like answered, or for further information, contact the community services at Besser Tech., room 110.

Ron Hartwell, a present Leukemia patient, and his family, wish to extend a special thanks to the donors and says, "To those who care and give, the people who need and receive blood, join together in a special THANK YOU for the gift of life."
