C. Jay Wright

ACC's "right" for him.

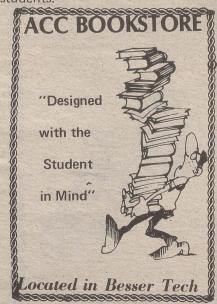

By Rick Sterling

"I wanted to find a small institution which I could combine instruction along with research." This was the comment of C. Jay Wright, a former Clio, Michigan native and instructor of forest technology here at ACC.

Wright holds his classes in the Forestry Lab to the right of Besser Tech. In addition to teaching, Wright does independent research in the forestry field on Dutch Elm disease and the distribution of natural pest control insects such as ladybugs and preying mantises.

Wright, who began his instruction here in the fall of 1971, received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Michigan Technological University. Along with this, he gathered experience in his field from previous employment of two years as research assistant at Michigan Tech, 10 years for the Department of Forests and Water in Pennsylvania, and two years for the U.S. Forest Service in Washington.

Among Wright's personal views on living and instructing here in Alpena was his idea that Alpena was a good place to him as well as to his family. He enjoys Alpena since he moved to the country. He also likes his work here and the students.

Spanish Vacation is with Education

Each year for 5 weeks of the summer, a program is offered to students in the U.S. and Canada to travel and study in Spain. Last summer, 98 students from 28 states, departed from Kennedy Airport in New York and flew to Madrid. The group was then bussed to the campus of the Ciudad Universitaria. Each class met five days a week and courses ranged from Elementary Spanish to Literature and Culture. Students toured La Mancha for two days, visiting all the interesting places related to Cervantes and Don Quixote. Some students had the opportunity to take advantage of the optional side trips to Paris, London and Rome arranged by the program, or trips independent of the program itinerary. Once or twice a week a group was scheduled to visit such historical places as Valle de los Caidos, El Escorial, Segovia, Avila, Toledo, Museo del Prado, Placio Real, etc.

Students found that they had also more than enough time to do, see and learn whatever they chose.

As part of the program, a trip was taken to Southern Spain, visiting famous cities as Cordoba, Sevilla, Granada, Malaga, and three days were spent in the beautiful Torremolinos Beach.

STUDENT FEATURE

Cheryl Zinke

By Elizabeth Littler

WANTED: Resident advisor, sophomore majoring in law enforcement. Helpful, organized, steady under pressure. Distinguishing features: auburn hair, freckles and a disarming smile. Last seen in the vicinity of Wilson Hall

Cheryl Zinke was born in Rogers City into a family of six brothers and two sisters. She arrived somewhere in the middle and she's been in the middle of things ever since.

About growing up in a large family she says, "It was interesting. There was always someone around... I'm close to all my brothers and sisters."

In high school, Zinke was a cadet teacher, assisting the regular teacher in the special education of mentally retarded students. From this experience grew the idea of teaching as a future career.

Zinke covers Thursdays, 7 p.m. to 7 a.m., and every other weekend she and another R.A.," one girl - one guy", are onduty, though in a sense she is available seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

Being a resident advisor is a "good job - you learn a lot - you find out a lot about yourself...worth the effort and the time," states Zinke.

"I enjoy kids. I've been around them all my life and I've always wanted to work with kids," comments Zinke.

An interest in law also developed, partly because one of her brothers is a police officer. A desire to combine both law and working with kids (teenagers) resulted in her enrolling at ACC in the law enforcement program in 1977.

After ACC, she will attend Ferris College with the intention of earning a bachelor degree in social services. When the schooling is complete, she will return to her goal of working with kids by seeking a job in juvenile services.

In many ways the job of resident advisor (R.A.) which Zinke has held since September, is similar to her chosen career. She and four other R.A.'s enforce the rules and regulations of the college's resident hall. She also deals with individual problems, advises on activities and tries to "be there" to any resident who needs her help.

R.A. meetings, and there are quite a few, are fitted around classes so that Zinke can say that her job "doesn't interfere with my homework...I have time to do everything I want to." She enjoys listening to popular music and dancing.

Occassionally Zinke must write an incident report on a resident in performing her job (the decision to penalize is not hers). But she says there are "no major problems" and about the students living in the dorm she adds, "It's a good bunch of kids."

One student living on the floor to which Zinke is assigned remarked that she was "O.K. - a good person." In other words, one might say she's "Wanted".
