

CAMPUS GRAZING ACREAGE ESTABLISHED

Perhaps some of you are aware of the vast quantities of land, owned by the college, located back behind NRC building. Recently it has come to the attention of the Lumberjack staff that this land has been designated for animal grazing.

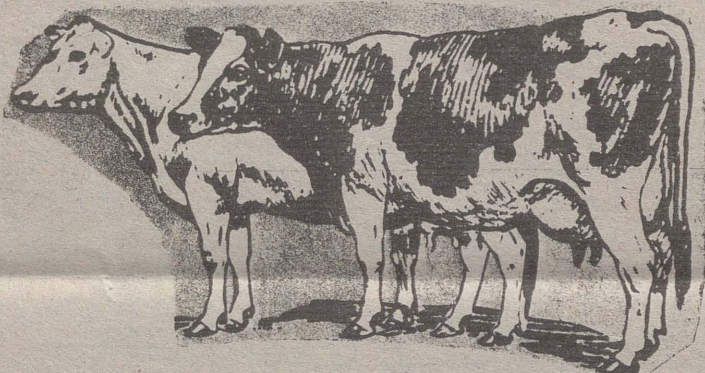

There has been a new program instated here at ACC through Michigan State University (MSU). The program correlates with the Veterinarian program offered at MSU. Apparently MSU has a large demand for veterinarians and ACC felt that it could accommodate their demands.

Instead of selling the dorm the college plans to renovate it into an Animal Resource Lab (ARL). The lower floor will be used for animal testing, cow milking, sheep program asked that ACC supply two men to watch and clean up after the animals during the first few weeks of this program. They intend to send someone later on in the month to do the job.

The two qualified men for this job are Farmer Pete Alexander and Farmer Dave Bendig. These two men are currently involved with the concrete program and are use to shoveling.....

At this point if anyone is worried about the animals getting loose and chasing them around campus, there is no need to worry. Along with the athletics fee, each student will have to purchase a cattle prod from Building and Grounds director Don Witt.

shearing, blood testing and other on-hand work. The upper floors will be used for lecture session.

The land behind NRC will be partially cleaned out and many corrals and fence lines will have to be installed. A small warning to area students-- the electrical fence encircling the area will have a voltage of 120 watts with a running creek underneath so please do not try to feed the animals.

An MSU Director of this

When speaking to Witt about this added program he seemed very positive about its possibilities. He commented that "This program will be saving gas money that usually is spent mowing the grass on campus. Our plan is to let the cows and horses graze, every other week, on the lawn around campus." When asked if this will create a problem Witt stated, "Only for Farmer Pete and Farmer Dave!"

Plans For A New Look

Downtown Alpena will be taking on a different look as plans for a new Tiger Stadium swing into motion.

Tom Monaghan, owner of the Detroit Tigers, proposed the move because of Alpena's potential for growth.

"The community has a lot to offer and so do we. By moving here we can help bring in more tourism", stated Monaghan.

Although plans have not yet been finalized, the building site has been selected.

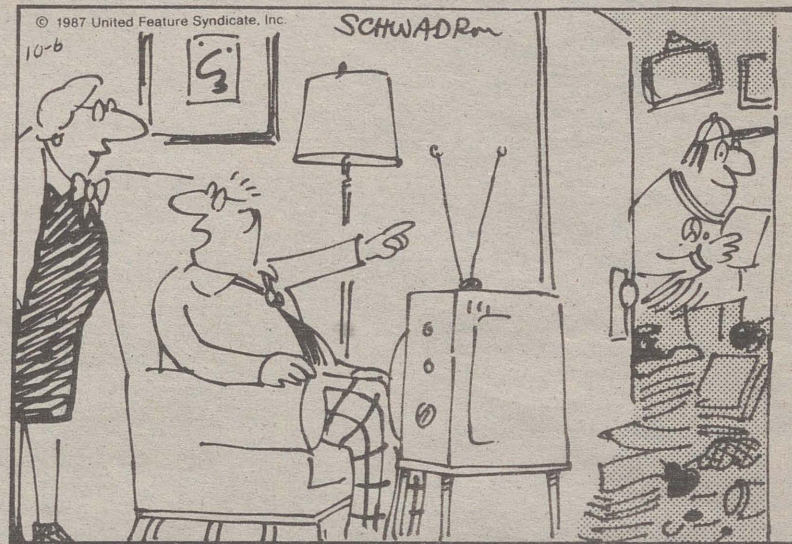

Several months ago, Monaghan bought the Alpena Shopping Center, located near the Small Boat Harbor. He intends to flatten the center, along with the Alpena City Hall and the public parking lot.

The shoreline will also be transformed into a "sports buff haven." Featured will be a baseball museum, a bandshell in the form of a dugout, and a restaurant called the Home Plate.

Construction is set to begin in June and be completed in approximately two years.

"We are extremely excited about this. Personally, I think it will be a hit!" said the Tiger owner.

If you believe this, I would like to sell you a season pass-- they go on sale April 1.

"On the news they listed the country's ten worst toxic waste dumps. Junior's room wasn't listed."

APRIL

OFFICE RELOCATION ANNOUNCEMENT

Due to the recent millage defeat, there has been many cuts made in the ACC Budget. Unfortunately one of the cuts has affected our college President. Dr. Newport's office has been relocated in the Elevator of NRC-- floor 1,2,3. When making an appointment, please note which floor you plan to be entering on.

Happy April Fools Day Dr. Newport, from Scott, Chuck, and Ann Marie!

HAPPY EASTER
