

North Central Accreditation Team

Peter Alexander and Jeff Kowalski

The Concrete Club students are responsible for the new patio at Besser Technical Center.

The students took it upon themselves to design the patio and lay the foundation. Funding for the project came from the Buildings and Grounds Committee and cost about $400.

Thanks to Concrete's hard work, we all have a nice place to relax outside, and our campus has become more attractive.

UP

OR 87 88

Some math students exhibit a greater passion for curves and figures.

New athletic bus

BOOKSTORE--A CONTINUING CONCERN

Have you been wondering what has been going on with the bookstore? Well, it is not a dead issue on campus.

On April 19, the Student Senate invited Bob Dickinson to be their guest speaker. Approximately 50 students attended the meeting.

Dickinson stated at the meeting that "...there is no contract between myself and the college." The bookstore owner also talked for quite some time about his markup procedure.

He feels the sale of textbooks is an extension of his regular bookstore business, and he also believes he is doing the students a service by operating the bookstore.

Later, he stated that college students give him "approximately 2/3" of his business.

After the meeting, when asked how long ago he made the agreement with ACC he stated that the "contract" was made in 1983.

The task force committee is currently looking into the situation so they can make recommendations to Dr. Newport. When asked what students can expect, Dr. Newport stated that by this summer he would like to see a "legitimate contract with specific performance expectations."