Komputech.

The computer business is changing all the time and Komputech has managed to keep up with those changes. For example, there is new software for networks that share CD ROM technology, and employees attend courses to stay one step ahead of the game.

KOMPUTECH now offers night classes in DOS and Windows. Classes are ongoing and there is room for 16 students. Each student has a computer.

Employers are also urged to take advantage of the training programs which are offered during the day and are tailored to company requirements.

"I find the business very interesting," says Harold. "It's certainly changing. I find myself spending a lot of time getting things ready for the customer and a lot of time learning the changing technology. It's very rewarding."

Next time, why not try

Komputech president Harold Lambert checks out one of the computers being assembled. The company is able to accommodate the needs of individuals and businesses, including networks.
