Crunchy capital

Quaker Oats president David Morton holds a rice cake — the product that has brought a $12-million facility and 50 new jobs to Trenton. The investment is Quaker's most significant in a decade.

Cormier said only 20 or 30 of the 110 workers who were laid off last year haven't found full-time employment yet. These workers will be interviewed for the new rice cake manufacturing facility, as well other unemployed from the community.
