

Quintech

Mobile education

Quintech employee Jeremy Dugan stands in front of a mobile instrumentation and controls educational system designed for colleges which allows a wide range of training at one-third the cost of a former, larger system. Adapting modern technologies to educational training systems for their use and service is the key function of the plant's staff. Belleville-made systems are sold in many countries around the world, with 85 per cent of all products exported.

Mar 31/89