

Eight Honored

Eight members of the Stewart-Warner Corporation were honored last night by being admitted to the Stewart-Warner Quarter Century Club. Two of those to be honored were absent.

Following a cocktail hour and a dinner S. D. Hagerman spoke briefly to the members in attendance.

Explaining that the club welcomed the people of the corporation together, he said, "each year brings new members to our quarter-century club. It exemplifies a spirit of good will."

As part of the admission, the new members were presented with gold watches. There were eight who received the gift, Lillian Summers, Evelyn Foote, Ronald Denyer, Douglas Johnston, Gerald Lewis, Douglas Locke, James Shortt and Walter Vanderwater.

To be admitted to the quarter-century club the employee must have 25 years with the company.

The presentation was followed by a social evening.

The Intelligencer, November 27, 1967