Lawrence Foster holds an Easter egg he and other volunteers at Eastminster United Church created. He's in his 15th year of mixing chocolate and making eggs for the program.

Eggs make Easter

He has also taught night courses in R-2000 house construction, electrical heating design, and thermal insulation design at Loyalist College.

He said he keeps coming back to make eggs because it's fun.

"It's a joyous thing to do," said Foster. "We have a great time.

"My dad always said, 'What you put in the water will always come back to shore.' If you put out good, good will come back.

"Usually it'll come back triple-fold. It's never one-to-one. The good Lord put us on Earth to help other people, not to help ourselves."
