The Samuel Thomas

Genealogical Page

Introduction: This WEBSITE is created in honour of American-born Samuel Thomas Greene, who became the first Deaf teacher of Deaf students in the Canadian province of Ontario in October 1870. I am searching for his descendants and/or their friends who may have family records, photographs, and other relevant information pertaining to the life and legacy of this Deaf man (and his hearing family). If you are related and have such information, please do not hesitate to contact me via my e-mail address at the bottom of this page.

If you are not related, I sincerely hope that you will still be able to help me in some way. Please notify me immediately if you come across genealogical information about this family (see below) on the INTERNET.

Acknowledgment of your assistance will be included in my next non-profit book.

So far, I have documented and verified the following genealogical data from non-INTERNET sources.
