Lel

Pediatrician officially opens office Dec. 1

Belleville's newest pediatrician has been in Belleville for several weeks, but he hangs his shingle at 165 Foster Ave., Dec. 1.

Dr. Keith Gregoire, who was born in New Brunswick but grew up in Belleville as a youngster, has recently completed a four-year residency at the Hospital for Sick Children and Toronto Hospital and is a graduate of Queen's University.

He first moved to Quinte in 1979 when Gregoire's father, an executive with Canada

Transport, managed the terminal here then. Gregoire lived in Belleville from the age of 10, attending Susanna Moodie School and Centennial Secondary School.

Since the age of 12, Gregoire said he admired the work of Belleville pediatrician Dr. Gordon Gosse.

"I just always wanted to be a doctor," he said, "and taking care of children is an ideal specialty, which is enhanced by everything I've learned and accomplished in neo-natal care."

Gregoire brings to Belleville wife, Sheila, a computer programming consultant and office designer, and daughters Rebecca, four, and Kathryn, one. Gregoire and wife, Sheila, enjoy squash and Gregoire's other interests, according to Belleville General Hospital, include soccer, fencing and ancient history.
