

Tice, Claude

Norman Rogers, wartime defence minister, who was killed in an airplane crash near Bowmanville.

Mr. Tice picked up the lead from the local provincial police headquarters office which district then included the Bowmanville area.

Minutes after the crash was confirmed Mr. Tice fed the news to Canadian Press in Toronto.

Now, "Claude" is stepping down from his role as city editor.

But complete retirement is still far from his mind.

He will continue to work part time writing obituaries, and covering curling and lawn bowling events.

So for the veterans of The Intelligencer's news room it may be retirement . . . but it's not quite "30".

Final Peek At Teleprinter

The Intelligencer, April 26, 1968