

JEFFERSON, Richard

Richard Jefferson ready to play to Former Belleville resident Richard Jefferson has special reason to look forward to a band concert on Saturday, April 3 at 8 p.m. in Bridge Street United Church.

Jefferson will not only be playing to a "home-town audience" but in a building where he spent many hours as a church member and choir member.

The concert is part of the annual series now sponsored by the church called Organ Plus and the band featured will be the well-established Toronto band, of The Royal Regiment of Canada, directed by Maj. Gino Falconi.

Richard's parents, Mr. and Mrs.

Frank Jefferson, continue to live in Belleville and are among those looking forward to the weekend concert.

Jefferson sang in the church choir for several years, and also, while in Belleville and studying trumpet, played with the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra for some years.

Steel April 3/93 p.4

'home-town' audience

Well-known administrative secretary for the church, Mary-Lynne Morgan, also notes that the band conductor, Falconi, has been a long-time friend.

Tickets for the concert are now available from the church office at $10, and will also be available at the door on the night of the performance.

A blend of traditional brass repertoire music, both sacred and secular, is expected, plus at least one or more pieces involving Bridge Street musician William Maddox at the reconstructed church organ, with the band.