A skill imparted

A veteran member of the Intergenerational Teaching Learning Community Program, also known as "grandfriends" program, Don McKinnon, (left), at age 82 continues to devote time to teaching youngsters how to tie fishing flies. One of his pupils in the current program is Doug Poulin, 10, a Grade 5 pupil at Prince of Wales School. McKinnon maintains his abilities both to teach and to tie despite the fact that he has been totally blind for several years. The program is operated by Community Care of Belleville and more volunteer senior citizens with special skills are invited to take part by telephoning 962-5668.
