

Ralph Blatchford

Ralph Blatchford's passing is a loss to the community.

The popular police deputy and war veteran had retired only earlier this year. His was a distinguished career, spanning more than four decades, and crowned by the move to the force's new headquarters on Dundas Street in which he played a leading role.

A family man and prominent also in church and service club work, the inspector is remembered as a genial and widely-respected member of the community.

The sympathy of a wide circle of friends and of citizens at large go out to his wife and family.

p.m. this evening and from 2 until 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Intelligencer Oct 16 1986