Former Trenton mayor dies in Scotland

Many Trenton residents are mourning the loss of a well-known professional man and former mayor today.

Dr. Robert Patrick, who operated a dental practice in the city for more than 30 years, died over the weekend while he and wife Barbara were in Scotland.

He was 68.

Patrick served as mayor of Trenton from 1974-78 and was also a councillor from 1970-71 and 73-74.

Patrick

A spokesperson at Patrick's dental office said that an autopsy was being performed in Scotland to determine the cause of death.

Patrick apparently died in his sleep.

He is survived by wife Barbara, four children (including son Will, who operates the family practice), and five grandchildren.

Patrick had semi-retired from dentistry and he and his wife had travelled to Scotland as part of a Rotary Club Exchange Program.

No funeral arrangements had been made as of press time today.
