

LONDON GOES TO BED

Associated Press

The fifth week of nightly raids from the Nazis found Londoners more acclimated to sleeping below ground, not very comfortable. The Piccadilly Circus tube station was crammed to the escalators (left). Platform sleepers (right) lie beside a parked train

Associated Press

William Vandivert

Dickins & Jones department-store basement (above) is rated one of the best shelters in London. Government employs strolling players to cheer up occupants. The lights go out at 10:30. Ear stopples keep out some of the bomb and anti-aircraft noise.

Pictures Inc.

No privacy is enjoyed by shelterees. Ten-week twins (left) do the best they can in a North London tube. The air is humid;

William Vandivert

covers are unnecessary for these Dickins & Jones patrons (centre). The old lady (right) is reading a Daphne Du Maurier thriller

William Vandivert