

Column for Farmers.

HARNESS.—After being wet, wipe and oil them thoroughly before they dry. Have all the harnesses overhauled and put in good order.

APPLE PIE WREASHER.—One cup of water, one cup sugar, juice and peel of one lemon, 11 or 12 Boston crackers broken into small pieces, bake with under and top crust. The pieces of cracker look like apple when the pie is baked. The addition of a little stewed apple makes the deception complete—to eye and taste.

CORN MEAL GARNISH CAKE.—S. Gervin, Williams Co., O., contributes the following to the Agriculturist: Take 2 cups of Corn meal, 1 cup of wheat flour—1 cup of sour cream; 1 cup of sugar, three eggs; 1 teaspoonful of saleratus, and 1 teaspoonful of salt, with sweet milk enough to make a thin batter. Bake the same as Buckwheat cakes. It is good. [This must be very good when the eggs and cream are plentiful.—Ed.]

HOUSES.—Keep well shod and sharp. Be very careful to blanket horses when they are warm. Give liberal bedding, and the best of care to the breeding mares, taking special care that they do not fall in slippery weather, if long with foal. Break colts, and subdue fractious colts or other horses by the Rrey method, when there is a lot of soft snow on the ground. Feed carrots in small quantities, 4 quarts a day, to all classes of horses.

AN ARTIFICIAL SOW.—The Mark Lane Express gives the following, from a correspondent:—A fine sow, having twelve sucking pigs, owned by a pork merchant in Monkwearmouth, died suddenly. The proprietor, who is an ingenious character, set to work and formed a rough model of a sow in wood, hollow in the center, and furnished with twelve teats formed of raw hide. The interior was filled with milk, and the young pigs took to it very naturally, and thrive well.

THE EFFECT OF COLD ON FATTENING ANIMALS.—Dr. Playfair, in the Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society, in speaking of the necessity of warmth to fatten an animal readily, says that to keep up the animal heat, the oxygen of the air unites with that portion of the blood which goes to form fat and tissues, and converts it into carbonic acid, water and ammonia. Where all the vitality of the animal is used to manufacture heat, there is no power left to increase the fat. If we would fatten animals in winter we must give them a summer temperature, by warming the shed and stables they occupy. The air that they breathe should be as pure as possible.

CATTLE.—Feed no more than you can keep well. Give good bedding to all. Keep milch cows and fattening cattle still; they need little or no exercise. Young stock and working oxen should spend some hours daily in the open air unless it is very stormy, but when stabled, should be warm and comfortable. Never feed on the ground, but in racks. Cattle kept in yards, (a poor practice at best) should have roomy and warm sheds. Provide if you can lumps of rock salt for cattle to lick when they please, otherwise, salt them once a week. If you suspect lice, rub a little unguentum (mercurial ointment) mixed with lard, behind the horns, and tie up for some days. Feed roots finely sliced; turnips first, beets, mangels, and ruta bagas by and by. Beef animals need the nutritious care of the owner now more than at any other season.

CHICKEN SALAD.—A friend who tried a chicken salad with us the other day, asked a minute description in the Agriculturist for the benefit of his better half and others. The recipe is a common one, for ought we know—perhaps it was used with special skill in the instance when our friend was so well pleased. Written minutely it reads thus: Mince finely the white parts of one chicken previously boiled. Take blanched, crisp celery and chop very fine. With 1 measure of the minced chicken, mix 1 1/2 measures of the chopped celery. Boil hard one large or two small eggs, roll the yolk fine, and mixing in a teaspoonful of mustard, and nearly as much salt, with 1 teaspoonful of vinegar, pour this over the chicken. Cut the boiled whites of the eggs in rings and lay on top, garnishing also with the smaller leaves of the celery. Usually the celery is not chopped half fine enough.

GOODS AT HALF PRICE.—A witty Hibernian, just arrived in London, and wandering about, perceived a blanket in a shop door with this inscription on it: "This superior blanket for half price." Pat walked in and demanded the price. "It is just five shillings, sir," replied the shopkeeper. "By my soul, and that's cheap enough!" And so, folding the blanket up and putting it under his arm, he put down two shillings, and sixpence, and was walking off when the shopkeeper intercepted him and demanded the other two shillings and sixpence. "Didn't you say, you spalpeen, that the price of the blanket was five shillings? And sure, haven't I given you the half of it?" And, by that same token, I won't give up my bargain." A scuffle ensued, and Pat was taken to Bow Street; but when there, he pleaded his case so eloquently, that the magistrate dismissed the complaint, and advised the shopkeeper never again to tickle his goods at "half price."
