Carmers' Column. CULTIVATION OF WINTER

From a prize essay in the American Agriculturist on this topic, we select the following paragraphs:

Wheat, one of the greatest staples of the country, if rightly managed, may be made one of the most profitable of our cereals, upon almost any soil. Twenty years' experience has demonstrated to me that we hardly need fail of success, if the following mode of proceeding be strictly followed.

Selection of Seed.—Select none but the best seed of bearded wheat. The white chaff is preferable, it be-The white chaff is preferable, it being worth some ten cents more per bushel in Eastern markets. Prepare a strong brine—do not depend on old beef or pork brine,—and wash as long as any filth or immature grain rises to the surface. By this process we expel from two or three quartof foul seed and shrunken grain per land to the surface.

Preparation of Ground, Seeding, see.—The ground, if rich and strong cause the tea is not nice enough, as to make the bargain a fair one, the same of the seed and the seed, and plow or drag in with the wheat is prefer to use about filteen loads to the acre thus prepared; then, after evoluge thinly, to plow it in. The seed, by coming in immediate one at the same of the seed, by coming in immediate one at thirty and vigorous start, which it otherwise would not attain. This is sead if the seed, the seed of eaution is unnecessary, the seed being so much deeper and the roots less exposed. When the ground is settlement of the heavens, and has been the second of the heavens.

Based discovered first by Prof. Tuttle, the cambridge (U.S.) Observatory, on the night of the Sth of July last, but now apparent to the hanked eye, its distance from the polar star is about eight degrees, being on a line asker time will come through, and prevent it from blowing off. The straw will act as a mulch, and the ground being shaded will retain the moisture; and if the soil is not very poor, you may expect a good paying crop. Two and a-half bushels sall per acre tends to prevent rust, males the straw strong and bright, and gives the young wheat a dark color if any one doubts the truth of this statement, I hupe he will make the experiment, and my word for it, he will not once adopt the practice. I know of no better mode to prevent interaction of the polar to the ravages of the midge than early sowings, and even this sometimes fails. The last week in Angast, crother first the desired of the polar to the polar to the polar to the first the statement, I hupe he will make the experiment, and my word for it, he will not once adopt the practice. The last week in August, or the first in September, I would prefer but this depends upon circumstantes; if the weather is dry I would rather wait until October. Some years since I made an experiment to test early and late sowing. One piece was sowed the last week in August; one the same kind of soil and the solution appeared to be very slow, but this was owing, doubtless, to its great distance from the earth, 135,000,000 miles, to its great distance from the earth, 135,000,000 miles. It then resembled a nebular body. Subsequent investigations showed that it was approaching our globe at the rate of two and a-half millions of miles daily. The embryo of a tail was first discovered on the 31st ult. About the 26th instant the comet is expected to attain its great to be interested in the Scientific American, which withis was owing, doubtless, to its great while of an other 'whip' on the mainyard.
