YOUNG STOCK.

Love should be disinterested and uncalculating: that love which ends will have an end.

Nature preaches clemency in the saddest models; she covers even forgotten graves with flowers.

It is not calculable what may be accomplished in every thing in life by moderate beginnings and judicious perseverance.

Some one called Richard Steel the "vilest of mankind." He retorted, with proud humility, "It would be glorious world, if I were."

There is a very ugly and penurious man in Essex, who works in his own house in the summer months to save the expense of a scullery.

A father who should think bread crusts and cheese parings sufficient food for his little son and heir, would not be long without the contempt of his neighbors; and yet he would be just as reasonable in the pursuit of results, as his neighbor who should think "anything good enough for young stock." A starved calf or colt is always a stunted one, and what it loses in that way, the first two or three years of its life, it never regains.

In our own experience we have never found any boy too good for young stock, and we should just about as soon think of going without our own coffee, as of permitting any one of them to go without a few oats or a little meal every day through the winter. Oats are unquestionably better than any other grain for young stock, as it is the production of muscle, and not the laying on of fat, the owner seeks.

A dozen thrifty, sleek, well-to-do calves are worth looking at in any man's barn, but the thin, pinched and suffering emigres which are too frequently to be seen nibbling, oris on the lee side of a snow bank, endeavoring to save that life which, if they could reason, they would very soon decide was not worth saving, so far as they were concerned—

—are always a reproach to the owner and an evidence that he is either knowingly or ignorantly a cruel man.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

CURE FOR PORK.—A French chemist has lately asserted, that survy will never rise from the use of salt provisions, unless saltpetre be used in the curing; that salt alone answers all the purposes, provided the animal meat be entirely parted with before salting.

The landlord of a hotel at Brighton entered in angry mood the sleeping apartment of boarder, and said,

"Now, sir, I want you to pay your bill, and you must, I have asked you often enough; and I'll tell you that you don't leave my house till you pay it!" "Good," said the lodger,

"just put that in writing—make a regular agreement of it; I'll stay with you as long as I live."

When Lord Derby married the fascinating actress, Miss Farren, then playing at old Drury, of which Sheridan was lessee, he was said to have been mean enough to apply for the arrears of the lady's salary, to which Sheridan answered—My dear Lord, this is too bad, you have taken from us the brightest jewel in the world, and you now quarrel with us for a little of the dust she has left behind her.

A Pantheist asked of old Dr. Emerson, of Franklin, Massachusetts, "How old are you?" "Sixty-six, and how old are you?" was the quick reply.

"As old as creation, sir," was the other's triumphant response. "Then you must be of the same age with Adam and Eve?" "Certainly; I was in the garden when they were."

"I have often heard that there was a third person in the garden with them, but I never knew before it was you." The Pantheist did not follow up the discussion.

A tavern-keeper in Kelso had recently erected a shower-bath in one of his rooms. One evening an Irishman, who happened to be drinking with a few companions, rose up for the purpose of ringing for more liquor. Looking round the room for the bell-rope, his eye fell on the rope attached to the shower-bath. "By Saint Patrick!" exclaimed he, "I have found the bell-rope at last!" and seizing it, he gave it a strong pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together."

In an instant he was drenched to the skin, and almost frantic with rage, to the no small amusement of his companions.

MODERN REFINEMENTS.—People don't laugh now, a day or two, indulge in merriment. They don't walk—they promenade. They never eat any food—they masticate.

"Nobody has a tooth pulled out—it is extracted." No one has his feelings hurt they are "facerated." Young men do not go courting girls—they "pay young ladies attention." It is vulgar to visit any one—you must only "make a call." Of course you would not think of going to bed—you would "retire to rest."

Nor would you build a house—you would "erect" it. One would imagine that the word "shop" had not only become contemptible, but had been discovered not to belong to the English language. Now-a-days all the shops are "warehouses" or "bazaars." You will hardly find a person who has the hardihood to call himself a shopkeeper—they are all merchants. Work-people are "employees" tea meetings as "soirées," and singers "artists."

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.—The famous Mustang Liniment, which has received such a high reputation for curing sprains and chilblains, is composed of petroleum, aqua ammonia and brandy, mixed together in equal parts by measure. Refined petroleum is very excellent for mild chilblains without the admixture of any other ingredient, but the mixture with ammonia and brandy is more stimulating. It is applied by gentle rubbing. The human hand slightly warmed before a fire, is the best agent.

To Polish Glass.—Cut some brown paper into very small bits, so as to go with ease into the decanters, then cut a few pieces of soap very small, and put some water, milk warm, into the decanters, upon the soap and paper; put in also a little pearlash; by well working this about in the decanter, it will take off the rust of the wine, and give the glass a fine polish.

"Oh, you don't know what mutual enthusiasm there is said a musical meditress." "Excuse me, madam," replied a wit, "but I do." Musical enthusiasts like turtle soup; for every gallon of real there are ninety-nine gallons of mire, and calico heads in proportion.

A young lady of eighteen was engaged to be married to a gentleman of thirty-six. Her mother having noticed her low spirits for some time, inquired the reason? "Oh, dear mamma," replied the young lady, "I was thinking about my husband, being twice my age." "That's very true; but he's only thirty-six." He's only thirty-six now, dear mamma; but when I'm sixty—!" "Well! Oh dear! why, then he'll be a hundred and twenty!"

WANTED.—An editor who, according to his correspondents, is not always ready to assist the injured and oppressed, and uses his "powerful influence" to suppress every real and imaginary grievance.—A newspaper correspondent, who does not want a corner for his effusions, or who does not apologise for trespassing on the valuable space.—A gentleman who in proposing a lost, does not wish the same to be taken into better or more able hands.—A church clergyman who does not divide his sermon into three parts.—A policeman who does not like cold meat.—A washerwoman who is a teetotaller.—A nunsman who is not fond of soldiers.—A teetotaller who does not like brandy.—A cabman who does not swear, and has got change.—A hairdresser who will cut your hair in silence, without telling you it's getting thin, or that it's dry or seedy, and that his pomade will put it all right.—Punch.
