From the Richmond Enquirer, Sept. 20. At eleven o'clock yesterday furencum a di from the City Battalion, marched from Castle Thunder with Spencer Kellogg, the recently condemned apy, in custody. The corte co-moved up Main atreet in the following order: Drum corps on the right, followed by two companies of millitary; back containing the ademned man, his apiritual adviser, Dr turrows, and Detective Capehart and another officer. The hack was closely guarded by mounted men, followed by two companies of infantry. The cavalcade reached the scene of execution about half-past twelve o'clock, where, as usual, a vast crowd of people, of both sexes and all ages, congregated. After a few moments spent in perliminary arrangements, the risoner was escorted, under guard, from the hack to the gallows. While seated in the hack awaiting the perfection of the arrange ments for his execution, he conversed gaily, with the utmost nonchalance, with Dr. Barrows, frequently smiling at some remark made either by himself or the minister. Arriving under the gallows, Captain Alexander read the charges preferred against the accused, and the sentence of the Court Martial—"that he be impressive prayer was then offered by the min-ister, at the conclusion of which the condemn-ed man, unaccompanied, mounted the scaffold, ed man, unaccompanied, mounted the scaffold, mounts they received only ten dollars each. In a few moments Detective Capehart follow-There was no money furthcoming, and being In a few moments Detective Capehart followed, and commenced to adjust the rope over the neck of the criminal, in which he assisted, all the while talking with the officer. On taking of his hat to admit the noose over his head, he threw it one side, and falling off the scaffold, it struck a gentleman beneath, when the prisoner turned quickly, and, bowing, said:

"Excuse me, sir." After getting the rope on his neck arranged to his satisfaction, Detective Capehart commenced to pinion the arms of the condemned, to which he submitted composedly, simply remarking:

"And the with mutiny, put some of them in irons, but ultimately discharged them all. Before discharging them he gave each an acknowledgment for sums varying from $100 to $130. The order was signed by paymaster Davis and Commander Maffit. This money they were to receive from Messrs. Fraser & Co., Liverpool, and they were accompanied by an officer, who paid their passage. On arriving at Liverpool, and they were accompanied them had behind him. Capehart then shook hands and left him. A negro came on the seaffold with a ledder of the same for the claim.

The officer who accompanied them had a letter to Capitain Bullock, but has been unable to see the Captain.

The men are in great distress, and are full shook hands and left him. A negro came on the scaffold with a ladder, and proceeded to fasten the rope to the upper heam, the prison-casten the rope to the upper heam. or meanwhile regarding him with the greatest the Florida. They had better not. composure. The rope being fastened, the negro was in the act of coming down, when the "This won't break my neck. Tisn't more than a foot full. Doctor, I wish you would come and arrange this thing. I don't want to have a botch job of it!" The rope was then re-arranged to his satisfaction, and the cloth cap placed over his head. The condemned man then bowed his head and engaged a few seconds in prayer, at the conclusion of which he raised himself, and standing perfeetly erect, pronounced, in a clear voice, "All ready!" At five minutes to one the dron fell, and the condemned man was launched into eternity. He struzgled violently for about a second, the rope awaying to and fro like the pendulum of a clock. He was left han fing thirty minutes, when he was cut down and pronounced "dead" by the attendant physician, his neck having been broken in the falt. The hody was then placed in a coffin and sent to the burial ground.

Kellogg was a man of rather propossessing appearance, about five feet eight or nine inches high, with spackling light blue eyes, sandy hair and beard, and a slight moustache. His skin, from long confinement, (some fifteen months) had become as fair as a female's. He wore, at the time of his execution, a dark blue coat and brass buttons, light blue pants, a blue check shirt and black wool hat. He was apparently about thirty-five years of age.

The wretch had previously confessed his crime; the substance of which confession was that he had hired himself in the Confederate En. gineer Corps at Island No. 10, for the purpose of gaining information for the benefit of the Federel Government, and though at last detected, he died with the conviction that he had furnished more valuable information, in the character of a spy, to that Government than any other ten men in the United States service.

WAR BETWEEN ENGLAND AND JAPAN.

The wanton attack made upon American and English vessels in Japanese waters by order of Prince Satsuma, one of the semi-independent Princes of Japan, by no means proves that the Government of the Tycoon had in any vay changed its friendly sentiments toward roreigners. It only shows that the native party at the head of which is Prince Satsuma, were determined upon the expulsion of the foreign ers, whatever policy the Tycoon might choos to pursue. We have this morning, via San Francisco an interesting account of the progress of hor tilities. A Russian war vessel brings the re port that the British fleet had proceeded to Kagosinia, to demand from Prince Satsum full satisfaction for the murder of the English man Richardson. While entering the inne harbour, they discovered an armed Japanes boat, which they pursued, attacked, and spee dily sunk. But having thus been drawn nea the shore, they found themselves suddenly at tacked by masked batteries, which riddled the advance vessels before they could get out range. The Japanese claim that they di abled the greater portion of the fleet, and the the remainder retired from the contest.

The news, if correct, is of considerable portance. The Prince Satauma, even if & were supported by the whole Japanese nation would be undoubtedly unable to cope with the English. The English fleet will be reinforce and procure that satisfaction which Englar demands. But it is clear on the other han that the Japanese, during the very short pe- (8 riod of their acquaintance with European and American civilization, have made greater pro-gress in military science than has been gene-arty. It may greatly complicate the rela-ons between England and Japan, and pre-are the way for a longer and more general

Japan has a population of about 40,000.000 finhabitants, who, when united and more failiur with in dorn warfare, would be able to ders would be able to equip quite as many tees for Japanese service us England hus litted out to prey upon American commerce. We commend the subject to the careful consideration of Earl Russell.—N. Y. Tribune.

Begun in 1857, the Atlantic Monthly has now reached its sixty-eighth number. Its circulation, increasing largely from the start, has given it such a currency throughout the country as no other American magazine has ever acquired. Its faith in impartial Liberty as a principle, and its warfare against Despotism in every form, have made it a welcome visitor, far and wide, every month. It does not abate, in these our days of trial and battle, one jot of that firm belief in the brighter days to come which Right and Justice are sure always to win, but its future pages will show an increased activity in placing before the minds of the people an unfaltering contidence in the power of the North to limit the existence of a rebellion founded in cruel injustice and oppression.
