The General Condition.

From the Trade Review. The most absorbing topic of conversation among mercantile men just now, is the General Condition and Prospects of Trade. Every one admits that the past few months have witnessed a very general depression of every commercial interest in the country. that numerous failures have occurred, many of them revealing a most unsatisfactory condition of the retail trade, and a few surrounded with circumstances of a very suspicious character. The tendency of all this has been to cause the Merchants and bankers not only materially to contract their operations, but to seriously reflect as to the safety THE UNDERSIGNED is now prepared and solvency of the great majority of the retailers who distribute to consumers the Forty Millions ($40,000,000) of goods annually imported to this country. In fact such a period as we are just passing through, can hardly fail to impair general confidence; and it is not surprising, nay, it is most gratifying, that an unusual degree of caution is being manifested in every department of commerce. Counties of Ontario, Peterborough, Victoria, Lambton, Kent, Essex, Grey, Middlesex, Perth, anxiety both as to the present and the future were it not that the causes for the depression about by the unusual combination of in trade are only of a temporary character. Our present condition has been brought a number of circumstances, any one of which would have been sufficient to have created trouble in commercial circles. Thus low prices ;-we had a small export of sawn lumber with a loss to shippers, and a "lock in question, or to the dangerous secession up" of capital in a stock of timber and lum- clique in this city, that no man ever deservexport. In the face of these misfortunes, in- President. heavy imports, implying a largely increased of the United States, until they actually fired liability, which the country was totally un- on the national flag at fort Sumpter. Was this tyrany? menced work last year; and we have the tyrany? tion will close the American market to us, this tyrany? which must be to restore ease and prosperity.

But we have another cause for hope of relief, and that too which will be more immediately effective. The large amount of Sawn Lumber held by Canadian dealers, will find a very ready and profitable market at once among our friends on the other side of the line. The great bulk of the present stock of Lumber could have been shipped ast year with a profit, with gold at 180, but when it reached 250 and even 280, shipments implied a loss. But now, with gold at 150, there is every probability of a good profit. We give elsewhere some views upon the lumber trade, which indicate the probability of a very active demand for all Canada can spare; and we may with every certainty expect an early return of the large aincunt of capital locked up in Lumber. Early shipments to Britain from the large stocks of Timber wintered over in Quebec and up the Ottawa, cannot fail to bring about the same result.

Again: another month will witness the circulation of at least two millions of dollars for the purchase of the Wool-clip, which will be ready for the market during the latter part of May. This staple has increased with great rapidity in the last year or two, and unless the prospect of speedy peace greatly sor smelt of whiskey, and the customer inthe meantime the fall in gold has had the between the United States and Canada; and the quantity of money which has come into the country in the past few weeks for cattle sheep, horses, and other things, has been very large. both the Great Western and Grand Trunk Railways report an unusual movement of Canadian live stock to American markets. Now all these circumstances cannot fail to speedily restore ease, but especially so in view of the vastly decreased importations of the present Spring. The returns from the Custom House show a decline of nearly one-half for the first three months of the year; and though the future looks bright there is still a disposition on every hand to practise economy in this respect. The requirements for duty and charges have been much less than for several previous yearsa circumstance greatly in favour of Importers, who have employed the half million usually thus locked up in aiding their customers to carry forward their payments. The purchases by retailers in this and other markets have been most sparing, and have been mainly confined to staples, and the absolute necessities of life. Thus from every point of
