MESSRS. DEANE AND ADAM.

To the Editor of the Canadian Post :

Mr. Adam makes positive charges against Mr. Deane's character, which Mr. Deane as positively denies. Here are two men, one a councilman, dispensing the public funds and financiering our town policy, affecting our assessments and disbursements perhaps for the next twenty years; the other occupying a position no less responsible as Deputy Postmaster, through whose hands our money and land-titles, as well as the secrets of our business and our families are hourly passing.

FENIANISM. There is one phase of Fenianism incidentally brought out, which it would be well hishmen at home would ponder over, and those who contemplate emigrating to the United States. Fonians in New York boast that they will invade Ireland, and that the invasion is not remote. The fact is acknowledged at last that they cannot procure employment in New York, or we believe in the Union. The men who include in this stifted talk are mostly discharged soldiers; and the vast numbers who have been mustered out of the armies of the North have inundated the labour-market. But they talk in consequence of returning to freland, and cover the real motive with a thin coating of patriotic gilding. Would it not be well if their countrymen at home would digest this lesson We fear they will not; they are too impulsive and too impetuous to derive instruction from it. Meanwhile the Fenians in the United States, after having served the turn of nativism, are being cast out like an old shoe. They fought, bled and died; and the remnant, having nothing more to conquer must needs cross swords with the Britisl Government. There are mi lions of Americans who would gladly send them on this bootless errand, no so much from antipathy to Scotland and England, as from hate of Irishmen. And as Negro worship is just now a choice stock of everything in the fancy sentence in proportion to the magnitude of in the ascendant, and as no more fighting is to be done, Irishmen in the United States may go to perdition, so far as native Americans care.—Mentreal Transcript.
