HOW COULD 1?

He carried my satchel to school And me through the drifts carried, too; Could I think why he hugged me so close? If I couldn't how could I? could you.

At eve, he tied under my chin
My hood, with bright ribbons blue; Why he gazed in my face could I tell?

If I couldn't how could I? could you?

He told me my eyes were so black.

The brightest of any he knew;
I blushed and looked down—could I help it?
If I couldn't how could I? could you? He left on my cheek a warm kiss, Then off with lightning speed flew; If I could, I'd have scolded and stamped;

Others perished, and after having mutilated the iuspector they were going to kill his child, but some woman succeeded in saving it. The tongue of the clergyman was cut out and the Baron's fingers were similarly treated. The volunteers fought well and dearly sold their lives. No New Zealanders or Indians could have shown more cruel ferocity than the insurgents. The storm of riot then rushed on to the district of the Valley, and news of the atro- vance. cities there committed soon arrived. Great numbers of refugees have arrived atKingston. In Hordly the Government house was atacked. In it a number of women and children had sought refuge. The inhabitants at other weapons, boldly withstood the rioters, and succeeded in holding the others at bay.

From that locality the following despatch was received by the Governor :- "The rebellion increases. The court house is in flames. The women are in the Government house. Help—troops. A gun-boat can lie off Holland Bay. Do not lose time.

Troops were at once sent to the scene of confusion, and reinforcements as rapidly as possible, whilst the Governor hurried to the spot. Three hundred soldiers of the Sixth Royals arrived at Kingston from Newcastle, whilst the inhabitants of that place were being rapidly enrolled as volunteers, a troop of volunteer cavalry having already left for Rock Fort. As the Wolverine steamed out of Morante Bay, it met the Ardent from Nas-sau, and directed her to proceed at once to Barbadoes for troops. Forty of the insurgents have already beer hanged, and so has the policeman who fa-voured the escape of the rebel leader, Paul Boyle. This latter has surprised most who know him, for he was always considered as pacific and jovial in his character. Of another leader, Grant, it is also said he was very sensible and one of the supporters of the acts of the local committee of which he was a member. General O'Connor writes that Captain Luke marched upon Port Morante, expecting to find the rebels in force, but found no opposition; a gunboat, however, found a mob of 800, mostly women, employed is set-ting fire to the house of Mr. Duffers; some 32-pounders scattered them. On the 5th Captain Luke was ordered to Bath, and with the detachment there to proceed to Hordley Hall and Golden Grove, to protect the wochildren, to proceed by the coast to Port Morante. Among the clergymen murdered is the Rev. Mr. Foote, a venerable and excellent man.

PROFITABLE BANKING .- We observe that the Royal Bank of Ireland, at its annual meeting of 27th September, showed a net profit for the half year of £56,000 on a capital of £300,000. The first half-year they paid a dividend of 8 per cent-, and the second of 10 per cent., making a total dividend of 18 per cent. This must certainly be very gratifying to the shareholders.

On the 3rd ult., a statue in honour of A' nold von Winkelreid, the hero of Sempaten (1386) was uncovered in his native town of Stang. The inhabitants of Unterwalden, as well as those of the neighbouring cantons of Lucerne, Uric, Schwytz and Zug, flocked into the town, which was illuminated on the occasion. The monument is the work of Mr. Schloth, a Swiss artist, and chiselled from Carrara marble.

ANOTHER frightful case of child-murder has occurred in London. Amelia Suthewood one of the chambermaids in Charing cross Hotel, is the criminal. It is charged by a fellow-servant that she placed the child in a drawer, it being alive at the time, and shut tde drawer, leaving the head of the infant In taking down the chimney of an old house in Bury, England, there was discovered hidden behind the mantel-shelf, a massive stone, carved with the arms of the Cavendish family, and gilt. It was in an excellent state of preservation, although at least three hundred years old. The stone was sent to the Duke of Devenshire, the present head of the Cavendish family. The Scientific American mentions a new lesign for small coins which consists in making them in the form of the numeral of the denomination they represent, as 1, 2, 3, 1. 5. By this device all confusion in the use be avoided, but it is a question whether they would not soon punch holes in the pocket. A rew weeks ago a codfish weighing one and a half stone, having in its stomach a pair of spectacles, with brass frames, was caught about three miles off Flamborough Head,

An English iron mill has succee naking a sheet of iron so thin that it reluires 4,800 of them to make an inch in nickness, thus effectually beating the Pittsburg iron-workers, who made a sheet so hin that it took 1,000 of them to make an ich, and challenged all England to beat if they could.
