His naked feet are on the mead;
The grass blades stiffen in his path.
No tear for child of Earth he hath i
No pity for her tender seed.

The bare oaks shudder at his breath;
A moment by the stream he stays
Its melody is mute! A glaze
Creeps o'er its dimples, as of death! From fettered stream and blackened moor,
The city walls he silent hears;
The mansions of the rich he fears!
He atorms the cabins of the poor!

The curtained couch, the glowing hearth,
The frost-rimed Graybeard's power dely;
He curses at he hurries by,
And strikes the beggar, dead, to earth!

For every gleaming hall he spares, A hundred heartless hovels hold

Hearts pulseless, crisp with ice and cold, Watched by a hundred grim Despairs ! The forests grow by His command
Who saith "He lendeth to the Lord
Who giveth to the poor!" Your hoard
Is His! Ye stewards of the land!

Here is your mission! Ye who feed
Your lavish fires! Not atar,
But at your doors, your Heathen are!
God's poor—your creditors! Take heed!

The path is long to Pagan shores;
Their skies are sunny—God o'er all!
The Winter's deadly harvests fall Around you! Deal your Master's stores!

SCRIPTURE MISQUOTATIONS BY MEN OF LETTERS.

From the Churchman, The late Bishop of London had a good story of an old woman who, having adopted a little girl from the workhouse, and brought her up till she was midway in her tcens, was then forsaken by her charge, whom a neighbouring farm-house enticed away to "better herself." On being condoled with on this ungrateful abandonment, by sympathising friends, the poor old woman meekly answered that Scripture warned us that such things must happen. "You know it is said there, 'Train up a child, and away he do go." 'There are accomplished men of letters whose quotation of Scripture, or indirect reference to it, though hardly so ludicrous, is not very Lindsay, October 17th, 1865. much more accurate than that of Bishop Blomfield's ancient dame. One scarcely knows what to make of Horace Walpole's confusion of Cain with Samson, in one of his letters to a clerical friend too, panegyand their Eden-like existence at Nuneham:—"I do not know the Paradise on earth I prefer to it, with its Adam and Eve; who may comfort themselves with having no children, when they recollect Notice is hereby given that on FRIDAY, the TWENTY-SECOND DAY of DECEMthat the first-born committed murder with BER, A.D. 1865, at 10 of the Clock in the forethe jawbone of an ass, a deadly weapon I am sure." "What says Timethy?" is Mr. Fonblanque's query in introducing the words of St. Paul, "Having tood and raimont let us be the said and ra ment, let us be therewith content." Wilfram Hazlitt ascribes to "the Samaritan" -whoever that may be-the publican's prayer, which he thus verbally misquotes, Lord, be merciful to me, a sinner. Leigh Hunt tells us of Shelley that he was a student of the Book of Job, and that for his Christianity he went to "the Gospel of St. James." It must have been purely a slip of the pen with Mr. Thackeray to write of Amelia Osborne and her boy; that the fond mother had "made some little shirts for him," when he left home to stay with his rich grandfather; " but when her Eli came to see the widow, they were replaced by much finer linen." That the author of "Vanity Fair" did not really confound Eli with Samuel is obvious from his distinct mention of the child Samuel for the County of Victoria, is prepared to effect again in connection with Hannah, in an every description of Fire and Life Insurance at earlier chapter of that fiction. That ver- the lowest rates consistent with security. Prossatile and vivacious critic, M. Philarete pectuses, &c., may be had on application to Chasles, whose reputation for scholarship is not inconsiderable, permits himself, in one of his autobiographical souvenirs of "puritan," who yearned to convert him, refer to Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, as the favoured three upon whom the fiery furnace had no power. M. de Sainte-Beuve, again, whom a Saturday reviewer the other day pronounced to be the first of DONALD BROWN, living critics, speaks of Cowper's attention being fixed by a verse in St. Paul's "Third Epistle to the Romans." This has its parallel, however, in a blunder of Mr. Charles Dickens, Dr. Elimber, the schoolmaster at Brighton, to whose tender mercies little Paul Dombey was consigned,
