fer much on that account.

My farm is more especially a grass farm.

My neighbours told me so at first, and as an evidence that they were sincere in that opinion, they turned their cows on to it the moment I went off "lecturing."
These cows are now quite fat. I take pride in these cows, in fact I am glad I own a grass farm.

Two years ago, I tried sheep raising.
I bought fifty lambs and turned them loose on my broad and beautiful acres. It was pleasant on bright morning, to stroll leisurely out on to the farm in my dressing gown, with a cigar in my mouth and watch those innocent little lambs as they danced gaily o'er the hill-side .-Watching their saucy capers reminded me of caper sauce, and it occurred to me that I should have some very fine eating when they grew up to be "muttons." My gentle shepherd, Mr. Eli Parkins, said, " we must have some shepherd dogs."

I had no very precise idea as to what shepherd dogs were, but I assumed a very profound look, and said :

this some time ago !" I wrote to my old friend, Mr. Dexter
H. Fowler, of Boston, for two shepherd and regulations of the society: dogs. Mr. F. is not an honest old farmer himself, but I thought he knew about as the Tattle and Gossspping Society. shepherd dogs. He kindly forsook far The principal and ruling officers shall be more important business to accomodate, as follows: One great liar and two lesser and the dogs came forthwith—they were ones, three tattlers and four gossippers, splendid creatures - snuff coloured, hazel any one of which will constitute a quorum, eyed, long tailed, and shapely jawed.
We led them proudly to the fields.

"Turn them in Eli," I said. Eli turned them in. They went in at once, and killed twenty of my best lambs in about twenty min-

My friend had made a trifling mistake in the breed of these dogs.

These dogs were not partial to sheep. Eli Parkins was astonished and observ-

" Waal! did you ever?" I certainly never had.

There were pools of blood on the greensward, and fragments of wool and raw lamb chops lay around in confused heaps. The dogs would have been sent to Boston that night had they not died suddenly that afternoon of a throat distemper .- a young man has waited on a lady twice, It wasn't a swelling of the throat. ended their interesting tails. I failed as a raiser of laurbs. As a sheepist, I was not a success.

Last summer Mr. Perkins said:
"I think we had better raise some grass this season, sir."

We cut some grass. To me the new mown hay is very sweet and nice. The brilliant George Arnold sings about it, in beautiful verse, down in Jersey every summer; so does the brilliant Aldrich, in Plymouth, N. H. And yet I doubt it either of these men knows the price of a ton of hay, to-day. But new-mown hay is really a very fine thing.

It is good for man and beast. We hired four honest farmers to assist and I led him gaily to the meadows. was going to nrow myself.

I saw the sturdy pessants go round once ere I dipped my flashing scythe into the tall green grass.

"Are you ready?" said E. Perkins. "I am here !"

"Then follow us ?" I followed them.

Followed them rather too closely, evidently, for a white-haired old man who immediately followed Mr. Perkins, called upon us to halt. Then in a low firm voice between, Austria, Prussia, the Diet, Frankhe said to his son, who was just ahead of me : - "John, change places with me. I hain't got long to live, anyhow. Yonder berryin' ground will soon have these old bones, and its no matter whether I'm carried there with one leg off and a terrible gash in the other or not! But you, John
