The solvent power of petroleum adapts it for use in the cleaning of steel articles. It does not become rancid or gummy, as is the case with other oils. The sand blast is now used for cleaning the fronts of buildings. It is said to accomplish the removal of the dust and soot without injuring the ornamental carvings.

Railway are a lopting every precaution against future disaster by fire. Special improvements are now placed on the oil cars so as to admit of a beil rope securely passing over them. A change in the United States law respecting the registration of shipping, in favour of coasting, fishing, and canal vessels, and all craft engaged in international commerce with Canada, is likely to pass through Congress. A despatch from Calcutta affords the gratifying information that the famine in Bengal is daily becoming less formi-dable, though in one section 500,000 persons are still dependent upon the Government for sustenance. Microscopic examinations of thin sections of various rocks is a tracting a great deal of attention in Germany, and every mineralogist now supplies himself with a microscope and a cutting or rab-
